FOR NATIONAL SECURITY—

O'Hare Air Force Base

BY COL. FRED T. CRIMMINS, JR.
Wing Commander, 142d Fighter-Interceptor
Wing

O'HARE Air Force Base, home of the 142d Fighter-Interceptor Wing, is fully cognizant of and prepared for its key position in plans for the aerial defense of the North Central United States.

Situated twenty-four miles northwest of Chicago and responsible for the defense of shipping on Lake Michigan and of such heavily populated and industrialized areas as Chicago, Gary and Milwaukee, the 142d is constantly on guard against a surprise attack. The "two-minutenemen" of the wing are ready, within two minutes, to have their F-86 Sabre jets airborne for the interception of enemy aircraft.

The 97th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron of the 142d is charged with the defense of such key areas as Cincinnati, Dayton, Toledo, Akron and Indianapolis. Consequently the squadron has been detached from its home base at O'Hare and stationed at Wright-Patterson AFB, Dayton, Ohio. It is still, however, an integral part of the 142d.

Assigned these critical defense areas by Air Defense Command under Lt. Gen. Ennis Whitehead and the Eastern Air Defense Force under the command of Maj. Gen. Frederic Smith, jr., the 142d is continually training and working towards the ultimate in combat efficiency.

In conjunction with civilian-manned air raid filter centers and Ground controlled intercept units, the 142d Fighter-Interceptor Wing is constantly on alert and continually flying the practice missions so vital to its successful operation, should the area be attacked by enemy aircraft.

Originally Orchard Place Airport, O'Hare came under military jurisdiction at the end of the war. It has since been known as Chicago Orchard Airport and Chicago International Airport. In 1950 it was redesignated O'Hare International Airport, then O'Hare Field, and finally O'Hare Air Force Base.

O'Hare AFB is one of the very few Air Force Bases to be named in honor of a naval officer—Lt. Comdr. Edward Henry "Butch" O'Hare. Commander O'Hare, one of the Navy's top aces, was awarded the Medal of Honor, the Navy Cross, the DFC with gold star and the Purple Heart. He was lost in action at Tarawa and declared dead 27 Nov. 1944.

The 142d's initial duty station was Geiger Field, Spokane, Washington. Formerly an Air National Guard organization, it was ordered to duty on 1 March 1951. In less than six months it has attained a state of combat readiness of which it may be proud.

Until the 142d Fighter-Interceptor Wing took over the station, 11 April 1951, O-

Greet Army Navy Air Force Journal on 88th Birthday

The Honorable George C. Marshall, Secretary of Defense—"Eighty-eight years of unswerving support of National Security and high devotion to the best interests of the men and women in the Armed Forces has established the Army Navy Air Force Journal as a Service institution. Its 88th anniversary offers me a welcome opportunity to wish it continued prosperity and success."

The Honorable Frank Pace, jr., Secretary of the Army—"I know that soldiers and Department of the Army civilian employees everywhere join me when I congratulate the Army Navy Air Force Journal on its 88th birthday. The Journal's record for alert and vigorous service has been a by-word among generations of Army men and women."

"For an efficient, progressive Army, the stimulus of new ideas is mandatory. Throughout the years, the Army Navy Air Force Journal has helped transmit such ideas in objective, accurate fashion. It has provided timely information of great value to Army readers in performing their everyday duties. By its editorials, the Journal has helped crystallize Army thinking and point the way to continuous improvement. A common medium for all military men, it has increased mutual understanding among all the services."

"I wish the Army Navy Air Force Journal continued success in its years of public service which lie ahead."

The Honorable Dan A. Kimball, Secretary of the Navy—"The specialized coverage of military, naval, and air affairs to which the Army Navy Air Force Journal is dedicated is of great usefulness to all men and women in uniform. Throughout its history The Journal's objective has been to provide members of the Armed Services with accurate and timely information on legislation, policies, and events of special interest to them. By this means it has created a better understanding among the services of the special problems of each. I am very happy to congratulate the editors and staff of the Army Navy Air Force Journal on the occasion of its 88th anniversary and to express to them my good wishes for the years ahead."

The Honorable Thomas K. Finletter, Secretary of the Air Force—"My sincere congratulations to the Army Navy Air Force Journal on its 88th anniversary. May it long continue its helpful mission of bringing news of the Armed Forces to servicemen and women in all parts of the world. Best wishes for many more years of worthwhile service."

General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff—"Since its inception in 1863 the Army Navy Air Force Journal has truly been a 'Spokesman of the Services.' I have watched its growth and progress, during my service, and have enjoyed its honest reporting and intelligent and timely editorials. It has made a major contribution to the progress of the nation and to its Armed Forces."

"On the occasion of its 88th Anniversary, it is a pleasure to renew my congratulations and to wish the Journal continued achievement and success in the future."

General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Chief of Staff U. S. Air Force—"I should like to congratulate the Army Navy Air Force Journal on its 88th birthday. Through the years the Journal has become a valuable and informative media for the dissemination of impartial and accurate information of interest to all service personnel. Best wishes for continuing success."

General J. Lawton Collins, Chief of Staff U. S. Army—"Heartiest congratulations to The Journal on this its 88th Anniversary. It has served the Nation and the Armed Forces faithfully and well—may The Journal and the high ideals for which it stands continue to grow in the years ahead."

Admiral William M. Fichteler, Chief of Naval Operations, U. S. Navy—"I have been informed that the Army Navy Air Force Journal is entering its 89th year of publication. Please accept my sincere congratulations at having rounded out 88 years of genuine service to the members of the Armed Services of the United States and my best wishes for many more years of success."

General C. B. Cates, Commandant of the Marine Corps—"On the 88th anniversary of the founding of the Army Navy Air Force Journal, I extend my heartiest congratulations on a job well done, and my best wishes for your continued service to the members of the armed forces of the United States."

Vice Admiral Merlin O'Neill, Commandant U. S. Coast Guard—"Congratulations to The Journal on its 88th anniversary! And congratulations to you and your staff for continuing the fine traditions under which The Journal was founded in 1863. I trust that you will enjoy many more years of success in the publication of news which is of so much interest to Service people."

Ban on Retirements Hit by Department

The Department of Defense, in an analytical statement of opposition, this week asked a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee to rescind a House-approved amendment which would block all retirements of Regulars except for physical disability and statutory age.

At the same time, the Department was reported preparing a similar document pointing out the need for elimination of another House-approved Appropriations Bill amendment which would require the release by 30 Nov. of all inactive or volunteer Reservists who served a year or more in World War II and who have been on active duty for more than a year since 26 June 1950, unless they volunteer for further service.

Senator O'Mahoney has promised to review the Department's position as regards the service of Reservists.

The restrictions regarding retirements and utilization of Reservists were both voted by the House as amendments to the Appropriations Bill for Fiscal Year 1952. This measure now is under "closed-door" consideration by a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee, headed by Senator Joseph O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.).

The Department's statement on the retirement proviso emphasizes that the appropriations bill amendment does not remove existing legal requirements that officers be retired under such circumstances as having been passed over twice, or having a prescribed number of years of total service, or having failed to maintain prescribed standards of performance duty.

These officers, the Department stated, must still be retired. But if the House amendment were adopted, they could not receive retirement pay. It is noted also that the amendment is discriminatory in that it would affect only Regulars.

The Department's communication to the subcommittee stated that the hastily-enacted House amendment would bar all enlisted personnel from retiring, except for physical disability, "no matter how old or how long they have served."

The Department said, "It is quite possible that an enlisted man could attain considerable age without being 'unfit to perform the duty of his office, rank, or grade or rating' within the meaning of the disability retirement provisions of existing law."

The following is the Department's statement to the Committee on the retirement amendment:

The purpose of the proviso added by the House appears to be to prevent involuntary retirement of personnel except for disability or statutory age and to serve as a deterrent to voluntary retirement. With respect to involuntary retirements, it is possible that it is intended that these individuals will be retired and recalled to active duty.

Provisions of law now in effect require the retirement of officers under certain circumstances such as twice failing of selection

Corps never deserved to be called, as President Truman called it, 'the Navy's police force.' . . . We hope he will make his apology real and lasting by signing a Marine Corps enlargement bill when it reaches his desk."

Detroit News—"The question . . . asserts itself whether the Congress is not wittingly, or otherwise, establishing a rival field force which will point toward taking over the task of the Army. . . . The end can only be, not an increase in over-all fighting power, but an eventual Army decline, preceded by an increase of interservice feuding."

Buffalo Courier-Journal—"Such bills always have been opposed by the Army and Navy on the ground that the result would be 'two different land armies.' This traditional opposition is ascribed by Marine Corps enthusiasts to jealousy."

Newark News—"If President Truman listens to his professional military advisers—as he is expected to—he will veto this radical change in Marine Corps status. . . . This is no matter for interservice jealousy; neither should it be affected by the well-deserved emotional appeal of the gallant Marines."

Cincinnati Post—"Army Chief of Staff General J. Lawton Collins told a House committee he opposed legislation to expand the Marine Corps because 'we don't need two armies.' . . . The best answer to General Collins' argument has already come from the Marines. They say they'd like to be built up to four divisions, but no more—on the ground that anything over four divisions would destroy their traditional effectiveness and make them merely another army."

As standards decline, the capacity of the individual soldier declines in direct ratio. . . . It will not be an easy task in the new behemoth Marine Corps to maintain the esprit that has been the mark of the United States Marines."

THE WAR IN KOREA

GROUND fighting in Korea this week was greatly accelerated, with concerted Allied attacks for limited objectives all along the front from Chorwon, in the west central sector, to the area on the east coast north and west of Kansong. Stubborn enemy resistance was encountered, and in most sectors only limited gains were achieved by United Nations forces.

Some of the heaviest fighting occurred at the extreme eastern end of the long battle line, where Republic of Korea troops sought to capture dominant hill positions from which observed enemy artillery fire was reaching Allied lines. Strong attacks on these well-organized Red positions were launched by the South Koreans, but little headway was made against the Communists.

North of Yanggu the enemy appeared to be massing troops for a possible counter-attack on the Allied line. In the vicinity of Kumwha the Reds reacted strongly to Allied pressure, and gained a temporary advantage by a local counter-thrust, which made a slight penetration in the United Nations line. However, the Reds held the salient only briefly, as it was wiped out and the positions restored after a five-hour battle.

Torrential rains, apparently occasioned by the typhoon south of Korea, drenched the battlefield, greatly hampering ground fighting, and preventing most air operations, including close support missions. Despite the heavy weather there were several brief air encounters in which two enemy jet aircraft were destroyed and seven others damaged by American fighter planes. Some of our aircraft were damaged, but all returned safely from these air combats.

In the area south of the neutral zone of Kaesong a United Nations patrol engaged an enemy group of undetermined strength. Just east of Kaesong the Allies captured one of several key hills held by the Reds. Some hand-to-hand fighting occurred as small units disputed possession of other high ground in the same vicinity. Light contact was made with the enemy north and northwest of Korangpo-ri.

Attacking United Nations forces encountered stubborn enemy resistance north and northwest of Yonchon. The Allies secured the objectives of their local attacks in this area only after hard fighting.

There was sporadic fighting in the Chorwon-Kumwha area where Allied units attacking to the north and west probed into strongly-held enemy lines. Several local counter-attacks by the enemy were repulsed. Light resistance from enemy units was reported by Allied patrols east and northeast of Kumwha and south and southeast of Kumsong.

In the difficult terrain north and northwest of Yanggu attacking Allied troops met moderate resistance, but made limited gains, and secured several of the hills in the area. A counter-attack by the enemy forced a limited Allied withdrawal of a few hundred yards. However, the lost ground was subsequently recovered.

South Korean troops on the east coast near Kansong were heavily engaged during much of the week. While the numbers involved were not great, the fighting was sharp, with dominating hill positions changing hands several times. Late this week the South Koreans still retained the initiative, but had gained little ground against strong enemy opposition.

Allied land forces in this area were supported by naval gunfire which prevented enemy troops south of Kansong from joining the battle around Kansong. Heavy guns of the U. S. Battleship New Jersey, the Heavy Cruiser Toledo, the U. S. Destroyer Agerhahn, and the Netherlands Destroyer Van Galen threw hundreds of tons of high explosives against the Communist ground troops along the coast. In one 45-minute period the Toledo fired 188 rounds from her 8-inch batteries with excellent results. The New Jersey's fire broke up two enemy groups, one in battalion size, massing for counter-attacks.

The U. S. Destroyers Hopewell and Uhlmann and the British Destroyer Consort continued the ceaseless bombardment of the east coast port of Wonsan. Rail installations and gun positions were knocked out and rolling stock was hit in the Wonsan marshalling yards. Troop billeting areas and supply points were also hit, and numerous casualties were inflicted.

Farther north at the ports of Songjin, Chuuronjang and Chongjin the U. S. Destroyer Escorts Moore and Seiverling and the Destroyer-Minesweeper Thompson knocked out several bridges and other transportation facilities.

Naval air activity was greatly reduced by extremely adverse weather conditions. However, planes from the U. S. Heavy Carriers Boxer and Bon Homme Richard damaged several bridges in Northeast Korea, and hit supply dumps and railroad lines from Wonsan north along the east coast.

Clouds and heavy rain, incident to the typhoon near Korea, hampered but failed to halt operations of the Far East Air Force. On two successive days American F-86 Sabre Jets engaged enemy MIG-15 jet planes near the Manchurian border in Northwest Korea, destroying two and damaging seven enemy aircraft.

In the most spectacular air encounter 29 F-86 Sabre Jets successfully intercepted 46 MIG-15s. In the ensuing 15-minute battle the planes fought individual combats that ranged from an altitude of 35,000 feet down to tree-top level. Two enemy planes were destroyed, both by the same pilot, 1st Lt. Richard S. Becker, USAF, of Fleetwood, Penn. These two kills bring Lieutenant Becker's total score for the war to four enemy planes destroyed, one probably destroyed, and three damaged, making him the leading jet pilot now in Korea. Other American flyers damaged five enemy planes in this battle. On the previous day in a brief brush two enemy planes were damaged.

All American planes returned to their bases, almost without damage. However, Lieutenant Becker's plane was somewhat battered by the debris from one of the planes he shot down. This Red plane exploded so close to Lieutenant Becker's plane that several pieces hit the wings, and some fragments were sucked into the air intake.

American F-84 Thunder Jets, F-80

Shooting Stars, and propeller-driven Mustangs concentrated their attacks this week largely on enemy rolling stock and rail trackage. F-51 Mustangs attacked a marshalling yard north of Hwangju, destroying or damaging two locomotives and 50 cars.

Shooting Stars blasted enemy gun positions protecting the Pyongyang marshalling yards, just prior to a heavy B-29 attack, in which the Superforts dropped 100 tons of demolition bombs on the important 6-track, 2400-foot yard, utilized as a main transfer point by the Reds.

The medium bombers were escorted by fast Australian twin-jet Meteors. Some flak was encountered, but no enemy aircraft was sighted. Because of the heavy overcast, it was necessary to bomb by radar, so results were not completely observed. All aircraft returned safely from the raid.

Returning Shooting Star pilots reported the destruction of 15 anti-aircraft positions, one boat, 100 enemy-occupied buildings, four fuel storage dumps, one warehouse, six bridges and one tunnel, as well as numerous troop casualties. Shooting Stars also cratered the enemy airfield at Sinnmak, and hit rail cars near Chaeryong, with 15 cars reported damaged and two destroyed.

In night attacks, B-26 light bombers and Marine night fighters, aided by flare-dropping cargo planes, destroyed or damaged 75 trucks attempting to move along the roads under cover of darkness. Air observers reported exceptionally heavy south-bound highway traffic. Other B-26s teamed with B-29 medium bombers to drop quarter-ton airbursting bombs on enemy front-line positions.

The Department of the Army this week estimated that enemy casualties from the beginning of the war on 25 June 1950 through 8 Aug. 1951 total 1,242,046. This is an increase of 4,174 over the last previous estimate which covered the period from the start of the war through 31 July 1951. This represents a decline of approximately one-half in the previous rate of more than 1,000 Red casualties per day, and reflects the lighter action at the front just prior to the stepped-up ground operations of the current week.

Of the total enemy casualties 623,216 are North Koreans, and 618,830 are Chinese Reds. Of the North Korean losses 377,854 are classified as battle casualties, 98,139 as sick or injured, and 147,283 are prisoners of war. There were 514,651 Chinese Reds who were killed or wounded, 86,519 non-battle casualties, and 17,660 prisoners of war.

Temporary Promotions and Selections in the Army

The Army revealed this week that it has promoted almost 31,000 officers since the start of the Korean war, including 1,935 battlefield promotions.

At the same time, Col. W. T. Moore, Chief of Personnel Actions, G-1, disclosed that an additional 4,181 officers have been selected and placed on waiting lists pending promotion. This group, plus an additional number still to be selected in the rank of major and captain, can expect to be promoted during the current fiscal year if there is no cut-back of Army strength.

Only one promotion order—from the rank of captain to major—is pending at present. Colonel Moore said that it is expected out "almost any day." The board selecting officers for promotion to captain has about 1,400 officers on the eligible list now and will continue to add to the list during its current session.

Promotions from the eligible list during the remainder of the fiscal year will depend on several factors, including the number of vacancies created through attrition, the number of Reserve officers released to inactive duty, and the strength of the Army for next year.

Colonel Moore said that "some four thousand Reserve officers in field grades will probably be returned to inactive duty," which accounts for the large numbers of officers on the waiting lists in these grades. If the Van Zandt amendment to the appropriations bill is passed by the Senate, all such officers recalled involuntarily and who have served for twelve months will have to be released by 1 Nov., thereby creating a large bloc of vacancies.

An Army compilation of the promotions made since Korea shows that about two-thirds of those promoted have been non-Regulars. Of those on the eligible list at present, 1,501 are Regulars and 2,680 are non-Regulars.

A chart showing the complete figures in each category was released and is reproduced below.

Department Drafts New Promotion Law

A comprehensive inter-Service promotion bill, which primarily will affect Reservists, but probably have an indirect effect on advancement of all officers on active duty, will reach Capitol Hill early next year.

The legislation is being drafted under the direction of Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna M. Rosenberg, and is an outgrowth of the Department's Armed Forces Reserve Act, on which the Brooks subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee has held hearings.

The subcommittee had intended initially to include promotion legislation in the over-all bill, but it was established early in the hearings that promotion aspects were so complicated that it would be better to handle this matter separately.

Consequently, the Department of Defense set 1 Feb. 1952 as the deadline for submittal to Congress of a new promotion law.

In an address yesterday, 24 Aug., before the fifth annual convention of the Air Force Association in Los Angeles, Assistant Secretary of the Air Force Eugene M. Zuckert acknowledged that dissatisfaction with present promotion regulations is widespread among Reservists.

"To iron out these injustices," said Mr. Zuckert, "a completely new Air Force-wide promotion policy, integrating Reserve and Regular promotions into one integrated advancement system, is this very minute being developed for Congressional action in February, bringing all Air Force promotion policy in line with Department of Defense service-wide directives."

During recent months, criticism has been leveled at discrepancies in Reserve promotion policies among the various Uniformed Services by a number of Senators and Representatives.

This was recognized in the statement of "Approved Department of Defense Policies Relating to the Reserve Forces," which provides the background explanation for the Armed Forces Reserve Act.

In the matter of Reserve promotions, the Department stated that legislation would be sought to achieve the following objective:

"An adequate and equitable promotion system for eligible reserves of each Military Department must be provided, approximating the same promotion opportunities for personnel of the reserve forces as for personnel of the regular establishment in the respective Departments. Promotion policies for officers in the reserve forces will be based upon the mobilization requirements for each Military Department, in order to provide qualified officers in each grade, at ages suitable to their assignments and in numbers commensurate with mobilization requirements. Procedures for the promotion of reserve personnel shall parallel those for personnel of the corresponding grades and ratings of the regular services, including selection boards; and shall be applicable to both unit and non-unit personnel. Personnel of the Inactive Status List of the Standby Reserve shall not be eligible for promotion nor shall they be counted in the computations for promotional purposes."

By 1 Feb. 1952, Congress will receive a bill to implement this carefully stated aim. At the present time, each of the Services is reported to have a committee at work on this problem. The various individual Service studies are being brought together and "packaged" into a single bill by Mrs. Rosenberg and her aides.

That identical legislative promotion provisions can be made applicable to all of the Services across-the-board is not believed possible. However, to the degree that is possible, uniformity in promotion regulations will be a principal objective.

It is explained that one of the most obvious reasons that complete uniformity is impossible is because of the varying importance given to the age factor by the different Services. For example, the Air Force must have young pilots in key positions. This requirement continually is being stressed as planes become speedier.

On the other hand, the Navy places relatively greater stress on experience and maturity in assigning officers to command positions at sea, comparable in importance to Air Force duties requiring younger officers. Insofar as age and responsibility is concerned, the Army is generally in a middle position.

But this is just one of the factors of special needs under consideration in the drafting of the new legislation.

Fundamentally, the bill must insure that the Reserve promotion policies are tied to the direct needs of the individual Service. Thus, it is apparent that the promotion policy for Army Reservists must be linked first to the over-all needs of the Army, rather than having prime emphasis on its relationship to the promotion of the Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force Reservists. Otherwise, combat efficiency would likely be sacrificed for conformity.

Beyond the legislation for Reserve promotions, the Department of Defense remains on record as committed to the formulation of a bill to remove inequities in the promotion of officers under the Officer Personnel Act of 1947.

This has been pending for several years now and presumably no action will be taken until the Reserve promotion legislation is introduced.

Ultimately, the Department of Defense desires to reduce the differences in promotion legislation as regards Regular and non-Regular officers of a single Service and as regards the separate Services to the minimum that is possible, at the same time insuring that military efficiency will not be impaired.

This, of course, is a big order. During the past few years, confronted with the complexities of such projects, personnel officials at the Pentagon repeatedly have backed away from formulation of omnibus promotion bills. The result has been piecemeal officer promotion measures, which have bothered the Bureau of the Budget and often have irked Congress.

Now apparently, this trend is to be reversed with the preparation of the inter-Service promotion legislation for Reservists. It is logical to assume with the increased authority of Mrs. Rosenberg's office that needed Armed Forces promotion reforms, both for Regulars and Reservists, Inactive and Active, will be sought as speedily as possible.

MacArthur Report

Eight Republican Senators reported this week that the "justification" for the removal of General Douglas MacArthur "seems to have been built up after the removal rather than before."

Although the Joint Committee on Armed Services and Foreign Relations, which held hearings on the MacArthur dismissal, had agreed not to make any formal report on the inquiry, members were given until 1 Sept. to file their individual views with the chairman, Senator Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.).

The eight Republicans, Senators Styles Bridges (N. H.), Alexander Wiley (Wisc.), H. Alexander Smith (N. J.), Bourke B. Hickenlooper (Iowa), William F. Knowland (Calif.), Harry P. Cain (Wash.), Owen Brewster (Me.), and Ralph E. Flanders (Vt.), reached agreement on an equal number of conclusions.

Highlight of the report was a statement that "The military played no part in initiating or recommending the recall of General MacArthur." The report said that Defense Secretary George C. Marshall and the Joint Chiefs of Staff "testified clearly and unequivocally that the military no more than concurred in a previously made decision to recall General MacArthur."

The general conclusions reached were as follows:

- 1—The inquiry was in the public interest.
- 2—The removal of General MacArthur was within the constitutional power of the President, but the circumstances were a shock to the national pride.
- 3—There was no serious disagreement between General MacArthur and the Joint Chiefs of Staff as to military strategy in Korea.
- 4—Our Armed Forces have acquitted themselves with gallantry.
- 5—The administration's Far East policy has been a catastrophic failure.
- 6—The foreign policy of the United States since the middle 1940's has been based on expediency rather than the principles of liberty and justice.
- 7—The United States should never again become involved in war without the consent of Congress.
- 8—Cessation of hostilities, based upon restoration of the status quo at the thirty-eighth parallel will be a victory for aggression.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr. (R-Mass.) pointed out that he was not in agreement with all of the statements, but that he did "agree with its criticism of the way in which General MacArthur's dismissal was handled and communism was given a 'green light' in China and Korea." He said he would submit his own views later.

Care of Widows Constant Concern of Relief Groups

The pitiful inadequacy of the government pensions to widows and children of Service personnel is the constant concern of the various relief organizations of the Services, according to testimony given last last week to the Kilday Subcommittee studying the Survivors' Benefit bill proposed by the Department of Defense.

The Department's bill would set up a system of Survivors' benefits to be supported entirely by deductions from the pay of members of the Armed Forces themselves.

Representative Kilday this week called off further hearings on the Survivors' Benefit bill until after the House reconvenes on 12 Sept. At that time, he said, the subcommittee will hear Admiral William M. Fechteler, Chief of Naval Operations, and a number of insurance actuaries.

Admiral Fechteler is expected to give strong endorsement to the measure. It will be recalled that last year when Mr. Kilday held hearings on a similar measure of his own, Admiral Fechteler, then in Command of the Atlantic Fleet, journeyed to Washington to give his support to the proposal. He brought with him the results of surveys he had conducted among men of the Fleet showing their approval of the plan.

Army Emergency Relief

Col. W. R. Scott, USA-Ret., assistant executive officer, loan collection record office of the Army Emergency Relief (not of the Army Relief Society as erroneously stated in last week's JOURNAL) told the committee that the members and dependents on extended active duty in all components of the Army of the United States are eligible for aid from the Army Emergency Relief, and also certain veterans honorably discharged subsequent to 16 Sept. 1940, and widows and orphans of deceased members of the Regular Army and the Army of the United States.

"Our load in the last year from the National Guard and Reserves," Colonel Scott said, "has been particularly heavy on account of the tremendous numbers brought in for the Korean campaign."

Seventy-five per cent of the aid given by Army Emergency Relief, he said, has been given to widows. As examples, he cited the following two cases:

"(1) Fifty-five-year-old widow of a soldier; relatives unable to give support; had a $42 pension, $300 cash, and a home mortgaged $5,500; monthly expenses were $96.94, not including clothing, medical and dental care, incidentals nor house repair; cannot work. Was given $310 at first, $100 of which was applied to the mortgage and six months' interest. She is to be taken care of for further necessary expenses.

"(2) Widow of a sergeant killed in combat in Germany; is afflicted with cancer; had a pension of $75 which plus insurance gave her an income of $138.60. She was hospitalized in June. Her bills increased to $800; creditors remitted $100 and the Army Emergency Relief paid the remainder."

Navy Relief Society

Vice Adm. Vincent P. Murphy, USN (Ret.), executive vice president of the Navy Relief Society, told the committee that 75 per cent of their outright grants go to widows at a cost of about $350,000 a year. In addition, loans total nearly $3,000,000 annually. Five per cent of those aided are officers. The Society, he said, had 1,370 applications during the past year.

He cited the following cases:

"(1) Widow of a Chief Quartermaster, with an invalid daughter; aided with transportation to a more beneficial climate for the daughter, and near a Naval hospital. Aid given amounted to $300.

"(2) Widow of a Marine Corps sergeant; small children involved. The widow had to have hospital care and surgery; her pension was not adequate, so was given aid in the amount of $350.

"(3) Widow of a Chief Quartermaster; had a pension of $42; had general physical disability, and no insurance. The Society paid medical bills of $220 in the past two years.

"(4) Widow of a Chief Boatswain's Mate with six children; had a pension of $106; was aided with medical and dental care, plus major surgery for the widow; provided clothing, school supplies and school lunches for the children. Aided to the extent of $1,300 during the past year.

"(5) Widow of a fireman, second class, with a small daughter. Pension inadequate; extensive medical and surgical care were necessary following an automobile accident. Aided to the extent of $1,667 in six months.

"(6) Widow and small child of a Marine Corps sergeant; was aided with a course as a laboratory and medical technician because of an inadequate pension. Was aided in the amount of $1,694 for the year's schooling, including basic maintenance, transportation, school books, supplies and tuition. The Navy Relief follows a policy of fitting such personnel to become independent.

"(7) Widow of a lieutenant; was aided with medical assistance for her small son, afflicted with a brain cancer, leading to death. Aided to the extent of $849.

"(8) Widow of a commander, whose ten-year-old son was placed in a private school for psychiatric treatment, at an expense of $900.

"(9) Widow of a lieutenant commander; was provided with medical and dietary care at a cost of $650 a year; had no insurance, and pension was inadequate. Was over 80 years of age.

"(10) Widow of a captain; is assisted periodically with medical care and payment of taxes; advanced in age; aided in the amount of $50 to $60 a year.

"(11) A daughter of a Marine Corps general; has no pension or insurance. Originally had an income of over $1,000; had to be helped with care that the state could not provide because her income was more than $1,000 yearly. Was aided to the extent of $115 yearly."

Air Force

The Air Force was represented by Col. H. N. Cowles of the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff (Personnel), who said that the Chaplains of the Air Force served as liaison officers in relief work. The Casualty Assistant Branch of the Office of Air Force Chaplains, he said, reported assistance to 2,501 casualty cases between 1 July 1950 and 30 June 1951. Of this total, he told the committee, 1,311 required aid other than the benefits to which they are entitled under existing legislation.

New Air Reserve Program

The Air Force has formulated a long-range program for its Reserve Forces, which will extend through 1958. Implementation of the plan will cost millions of dollars, but it is expected to eliminate troubles which have beset the Reserve Program in the past and increase the over-all effectiveness of the Air Force.

This was reported to the fifth annual national convention and reunion of the Air Force Association in Los Angeles, Calif., on Friday, 24 Aug., by Assistant Secretary of the Air Force Eugene M. Zuckert.

His address was directed principally towards the explanation of a long-range plan for the Reserve Forces of the USAF. Mr. Zuckert said the plan "puts teeth" in the entire Reserve program. He maintained it establishes realistic missions, places responsibility for making the program work directly on the shoulders of the Air Staff and the Major Command and tells the Reservist and his family and employer exactly what his status is. The plan will blanket the entire country, the Air Force official emphasized.

In describing the new long-range Reserve Forces program, which already has the approval of Secretary of the Air Force Thomas K. Finletter and General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, USAF Chief of Staff, Mr. Zuckert emphasized that the plan will be implemented in an orderly and planned sequence.

The Assistant Secretary stressed the importance of an effective Reserve organization—embracing members of both the Air Force Reserve and the Air National Guard. He pointed out that latest figures show 78 per cent of all officers now on active duty to be non-Regulars.

The story of the Reserve Forces plan, how it was developed and what it seeks to achieve was described as follows by Mr. Zuckert:

Key officers at USAF Headquarters first analyzed Reserve problems, then conferred with staff officers of the Continental Air Command and Mr. Zuckert met later at Colorado Springs, Colo., with members of the statutory Reserve Section

New Armored Vehicle

Production of a new armored personnel carrier which will take Infantrymen to the front lines along with the tanks, while giving protection from small arms fire and shell fragments, was announced by the Department of the Army this week.

Officially designated the T18E1, the full tracked Infantry carrier will traverse the same terrain as the tanks, putting Infantry with spearhead elements. The vehicle was developed by the Army Ordnance Corps.

Powered by Ordnance's newest six-cylinder, air-cooled engine and cross drive transmission, the new carrier will travel on improved roads at a sustained speed of over 35 miles per hour, turn in its own length and climb or descend 60 per cent slopes.

Designed to carry a squad of twelve men, the 20-ton carrier can also be used as a cargo or litter carrier, a prime mover for towing artillery, or command-post car. Double rear doors permit the squad to dismount quickly from the compartment.

Improvements over its forerunners include increased overhead protection, greater ease of operation, higher speed, and increased maneuverability. The vehicle's armament is a caliber .50 machine gun.

The personnel carrier is being produced by International Harvester Company of Chicago, and the Food Machinery and Chemical Corporation of San Jose, California.

New Cure for Malaria

A rapid cure for malaria may be provided by a new drug, primaquine, now being tested extensively in the field, the Department of the Army announced on 18 Aug.

Tests already conducted indicate that primaquine may be a far more effective treatment for malaria than any other drug now in use, according to Maj. Gen. George E. Armstrong, Army Surgeon General. He emphasized, however, that further research is necessary to determine whether it will prove as effective against the strain of malaria found in Korea as it has against experimental strains.

If field tests of the drug prove satisfactory, its use should greatly accelerate the recovery of military personnel returning from Korea who have contracted malaria in that country, General Armstrong stated.

Leaves Ft. Monroe for AAA Post

Col. James F. Howell, jr., Inspector of Artillery Section, Office, Chief Army Field Forces, left Ft. Monroe, Va., 20 Aug. for Ent AFB, Colorado Springs, Colo. He will assume new duties there as Deputy Commander of the Army Anti-aircraft Artillery.

UNITED STATES ARMY

Receives Silver Star

For gallantry in action against the enemy near a Korean river crossing, Lt. Col. Ryerson N. Mausert, USA, was awarded the Silver Star at a brief ceremony in the Pentagon on 20 Aug.

The presentation was made by Brig. Gen. Robert Crichtow, Army Secretary to the Research and Development Board, to which Colonel Mausert is now assigned. The citation accompanying the award describes the effective action which Colonel Mausert took on 28 May 1951 resulting in the routing of an enemy group which had halted the progress of an Infantry-Armored Task Force en route from Charen-ri to Kansong, Korea. Moving toward the head of the halted column, Colonel Mausert, despite intense enemy fire, ordered a flank attack which routed the enemy.

MC Degrees for Medics

Four of Brooke Army Hospital's medical officers will receive their Master of Science degrees from Baylor University, Waco, Tex., on 23 Aug. They will bring the total number of Brooke officers winning that degree to 12 since the affiliated program between the hospital and Baylor University's Graduate School began in October 1949.

Those completing the requirements for the degree are Lt. Col. Edward K. Mills and Majors Arthur B. Tarrow, William H. Westbrook and William C. Winters. Major Tarrow will be the only one present for the ceremonies in Waco, the other three have left Brooke Army Medical Center to report to their new duty stations.

1st Cavalry Reunion

Hundreds of former 1st Cavalry Division troopers, including many veterans of the Korean campaigns, will arrive in San Antonio, Tex., for a division reunion 1-3 Sept.

Brig. Gen. Rex E. Chandler (Ret.), president of the San Antonio Chapter of the 1st Cavalry Division Association, predicts this reunion to be the biggest ever held with an expected attendance of 600. Reunion headquarters will be at the Plaza Hotel. Requests for additional information or for reservations should be addressed to Reunion Committee, Post Office Box 201, Grayson Street Station, San Antonio, Tex.

8th Inf. Div. Assoc.

The 8th Infantry Division Association will hold its Fourth Annual Reunion at the Hotel Dempsey in Macon, Ga., on 31 Aug. and 1 Sept.

The 8th Infantry Division was in the European Theater of Operations. Participated in the Normandy, France, Rhineland and Central Europe Campaigns. Assigned at various times to First Army, Third Army, Ninth Army and the British Second Army.

Heads 3d Army Assn.

Col. S. W. (Bill) Brown, USAR, noted St. Louis radio package producer, was elected president of the Third Army Association at its third annual convention held in Chicago recently.

Other officers in the association include Lt. Gen. Raymond S. McLain, Comptroller of the Army, honorary Vice President at large; Maurice Pryor of Detroit, Executive Vice President; H. M. Dungan of Indianapolis, Secretary; and John P. Wisenhaupt of Ottumwa, Iowa, Treasurer. General McLain served as Commanding General of the 90th Infantry Division under General Patton while Mr. Pryor and Mr. Wisenhaupt were enlisted men in the G-3 section of Third Army headquarters. Mr. Dungan was a colonel in the G-3 section of General Patton's headquarters.

45th Inf. Div. Reunion

The 45th Division Association will hold its Sixth Annual Reunion at the Hotel Statler, Washington, D. C., on 5, 6 and 7 Oct. Persons who wish to attend may secure additional information by writing to Mr. Lester J. Buckler, 3100 Connecticut Ave., N.W., Washington, D. C.

The 45th Division was one of the first National Guard Divisions called to active service prior to the outbreak of World War II. It went overseas in June 1943, participated in eight campaigns during 511 days of actual combat, and sustained 28,189 casualties. This record included participation in four major assault amphibious landings—Sicily, Salerno, Anzio and Southern France.

Again in the present emergency the Division was one of the first two National Guard Divisions recalled to active service. Following a training period at Camp Polk, La., the Division sailed in the spring of this year to Japan where it is now undergoing further intensive training and carrying on its other assigned missions. Many of the present officers and men of the division are combat veterans of World War II, a large percentage having served with the 45th.

First Aliens Sworn In

The first group of aliens to be enlisted into the U. S. Army under the alien enlistment program reported to the European Command replacement depot at Sonthofen, Germany, on 13 Aug.

The group was given a three-day processing, and on 16 Aug. was sworn into the U. S. Army in a public ceremony. Other groups accepted for enlistment will begin to arrive shortly thereafter. More than 2600 applications have been received, but only 2500 will be accepted for enlistment.

Clerks and Medics Cited

Headquarters Company and Medical Company of the 21st Infantry Regiment have been awarded the Distinguished Unit Citation, Oak Leaf Cluster, for their action in helping defeat a powerful enemy force that attacked their positions on 27 May in Korea.

Army Expands OC Schools

Three new Officer Candidate Schools will begin operations 1 Sept. as part of a plan to increase opportunities for qualified personnel from both military and civilian life to obtain commissions in the Army.

The new officer candidate courses will be offered at the Engineer School, Fort Belvoir, Va.; the Signal School, Fort Monmouth, N. J., and the Armored School, Fort Knox, Ky. These courses will be in addition to those now offered at The Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga.; the Artillery School, Fort Sill, Okla. and the Army General School, Fort Riley, Kans.

Courses at the schools will be five months in length. Starting next month, the Officer Candidate program is scheduled to produce 8,000 officers annually, the Army said.

To meet the needs of the Army, qualified officers are being sought, from sources generally available within the Army, to replace and augment those reserve officers ordered into the active military service who will eventually revert to an inactive status.

The program for officer procurement includes in addition to expansion of OCS programs, the tendering of direct commissions to outstanding non-commissioned officers, direct appointments in the technical and administrative service of qualified civilian personnel, the ordering into active military service, as officers, of warrant officer and enlisted men who hold reserve commissions, and continued emphasis on the program of original enlistment for attendance at Officer Candidate Schools.

The program reduces both the time required to obtain an OCS commission, and the length of obligated service after receiving a commission. Effective immediately, graduates of Army Officer Candidate Schools will be required to serve a minimum of 18 months after graduation, instead of the previous mandatory time of 24 months. The Leadership Course of eight weeks, formerly a prerequisite for OCS attendance, may be waived. This will permit qualified individuals to be sent to OCS directly from basic training, or from units.

Qualified civilians, and enlisted personnel of the other armed services obtaining conditional release from their respective services, may now enlist for a two-year period for the specific purpose of attending an Army Officer Candidate course, but will be required to serve the full two-year enlistment should they fail to complete an officer candidate course successfully.

In addition to the expanded OCS program, the Army will seek to procure officers through direct appointments into the Organized Reserve Corps. This will be accomplished by:

1. Army commanders will convene boards of officers for consideration of applicants for direct appointments in the Organized Reserve Corps and concurrent call to active military service as second lieutenants of Infantry, Artillery and Armor. This opportunity will be afforded to all warrant officers and enlisted personnel (Grade E-5 through E-7), of any component of the Army currently serving in active military service who have completed six months of honorable and creditable service in such grades.

2. Army commanders will also convene boards of officers for consideration of qualified technical and professional personnel, without prior military service, for appointment in the ORC and concurrent call to active military service.

In addition, the Army has initiated a special procurement program to place in their commissioned grades qualified warrant officers and enlisted personnel, now in the active service, who hold company grade Reserve commissions.

Oppose Retirement Limit

for promotion, or having a prescribed number of years of total service, or having failed to maintain prescribed standards of performance of duty. The proviso does not remove the existing legal requirement that such persons be retired, but merely denies them retirement pay.

The laws providing for the involuntary retirement of officers for age, length of service, or failure to qualify for promotion were designed to permit a flow of promotion of qualified officers through the various grades with a view of having officers reach the higher grades, especially the General and Flag Officer grades, at a vigorous age. This is not possible without a reasonable amount of forced attrition, even during a period of national emergency. It is also generally desirable to permit the voluntary retirement of personnel with more than 30 years service in order to maintain a healthy attrition and flow of promotions.

It is generally recognized that the Services must also have a legal method for administratively eliminating officers with long service who have relaxed their efficiency or reduced their moral standards to an unacceptable degree. To retain such personnel would have an adverse effect on those officers who perform efficiently and would subject the Services to justified criticism.

The Armed Services are aware of the desirability of retaining, during this emergency period, the experienced personnel who have attained less than 30 years of military service. It is the policy of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force not to retire officers who have completed less than 30 years of active military service except when the circumstances are such as to be in the best interests of the Service or in cases of individual hardship.

During F. Y. 1951 voluntary retirements of officers with more than 20 years but less than 30 years of service in the Air Force were seven, in the Navy four, in the Marine Corps two, and in the Army one. Thus, it is evident that the Services by administrative procedure have effectively retained those younger, experienced officers during the period of this emergency.

During the past year there has been considerable publicity in connection with the retirement of perhaps a half dozen high-ranking figures who have retired voluntarily after more than 30 years of distinguished service and have accepted responsible positions at high salaries with nationally known corporations. This is not typical of what happens to the average military man upon retirement. While there may be an occasional prominent figure who retires after 30 years or more of service and who, perhaps, should be retained in the service, it does not occur often enough to make it desirable to change the general policy which is to honor a request for voluntary retirement from military personnel who have served for more than 30 years.

The retention on the active lists of personnel of the regular services who have completed over 30 years of active service would not reduce significantly the number of reservists called to active duty. The military services during the present national emergency have little need for the services of older officers who, after falling of selection, have completed 30 or more years of service. In those cases where the services of these officers could be utilized, they have been retired and retained on active duty as retired officers. Although the proviso would require the services to retain on active duty older personnel who generally cannot be employed profitably, it would not reduce the requirement for younger, more vigorous personnel whom the services need.

It should be noted that this proviso is discriminatory in that it applies only to regular officers and not to reserve officers. Similarly, there are many regular military personnel in the service today who because of the outbreak of Korean hostilities have voluntarily deferred their retirement in order to assist in the prosecution of the war. Such personnel would by this provision be penalized for their patriotism in having deferred their retirement in the interests of the national defense effort.

The proviso is particularly undesirable as applied to enlisted personnel. There is no retirement for age prescribed in the law. Should the provision become law, enlisted personnel, no matter how old or how long they have served, could not be retired and paid retirement pay except for physical disability. It is quite possible that an enlisted man could attain considerable age without being "unfit to perform the duty of his office, rank, grade or rating" within the meaning of the disability retirement provisions of existing law.

Army Navy Air Force Journal 1477
25 August 1951

Existing law permits, during the period of national emergency, the employment of retired military personnel on active duty if physically qualified for such duty where the military services have need of such personnel.

The call to active military service of retired personnel or the retention on active military service of personnel which existing law requires to be retired should not be made mandatory. The needs of the Services should govern. This provision is inflexible and cannot be relaxed no matter what the needs of the Services may be.

Selection Board

Navy selection boards will convene on 11 Sept. to recommend Medical, Supply and Dental Corps officers for temporary promotion to the grade of rear admiral. The Bureau of Naval Personnel told THE JOURNAL that "no billets are available for officers of the Civil Engineer Corps."

Those who are eligible in the respective corps, the Navy said, are officers whose line running mates are senior to Capt. George Myron Greene, USNA-1931. The promotion zones in each corps end with the junior officer whose running mate is senior to Capt. Armand Malcolm Morgan, USNA-1924.

In addition, the Navy said the three boards, together with a special Civil Engineer Board to be convened on the same date, will also act as retention boards. They will consider for continuation on the active list all staff corps captains who have been twice passed over by previous selection boards.

Deep Sea Diving School

The Navy is accepting applications from qualified warrant officers of the regular Navy in the grades of Gunner and Boatswain for a course of instruction in deep sea diving.

Accepted applicants will attend a six-month course at the Deep Sea Diving School, Naval Gun Factory, Washington, D. C. Classes convene the first Monday in April and October. The Navy said that applications should reach the Bureau of Naval Personnel not later than three months prior to the convening date of the school.

Marine EM Promotion Tests

Promotion tests for all Marine enlisted personnel will be administered during September.

Schedules are as follows: 1 Sept.—Pfc's and Cpl's; 7 Sept.—Sgt's, S/Sgt's and T/Sgt's. Technical tests will be given to personnel eligible for promotion to staff, technical or master sergeant on 8 Sept.

Build Atomic Submarine

The Navy this week announced that a contract has been let for construction of an atomic-powered submarine.

In a brief, one-sentence announcement, the Navy Bureau of Ships said, "a contract for the first nuclear-powered submarine has been awarded to the Electric Boat Company, Groton, Conn." A Navy spokesman later confirmed reports that the vessel, exclusive of the power plant, would cost about 29 million dollars, or almost twice as much as a regular Fleet-type submarine.

The Navy declined to give any further details on the construction of the atomic-powered vessel, but it was reported that the Electric Boat Company—the oldest builder of submarines—has been laying plans for the radical undersea ship for some time.

The Bureau of Ships said earlier that emphasis is "being placed upon completing advanced developments" in the field of nuclear power.

Admiral Burke to NavOps

Rear Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, a member of the United Nations Truce Team in Korea, has been ordered to report for duty to the office of Naval Operations in Washington.

A former Assistant Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral Burke headed the Navy's Organizational Research and Policy Division—the now defunct "Op-23"—which was responsible for preparing the basic data used by Navy flag officers during the unification controversy in 1949.

Shortly after the late Admiral Forrest P. Sherman became Chief of Naval Operations, OP-23 was ordered disbanded. Admiral Burke was at that time a Captain. A month later, a Navy selection board report was unusually delayed and it was rumored that Captain Burke's name had been removed by President Truman from the list of those recommended. When the list was subsequently released, Captain Burke was listed among those slated for promotion to flag rank. He became a Rear Admiral on 10 July 1950.

Since that time, he has served as Navy Secretary of the Research and Development Board, and Deputy Chief of Staff to the Commander, U. S. Naval Forces, Far East. He was in command of Cruiser Division Five at the time he was assigned to the Korean truce team.

The Navy said that Admiral Burke's new assignment within the Office of Naval Operations would not be divulged until his arrival in Washington. However, only two flag billets are available at present. They are: Director of Logistics Plans in the office of the Deputy CNO for Logistics, or Assistant Director of the Office of Naval Intelligence.

Release Marine Officers

Marine Corps Reserve officers in the top release priority are being returned to inactive duty in accordance with the following schedule:

Those called to active duty on 24 July 1950, and in some instances those called 25 July 1950, are being released this month. Those called up as late as 26 July 1950, are being released in September, and those called prior to 29 July, 31 July, and 1 Aug. 1950, will be released respectively in October, November and December.

Regular Navy Dental Corps

The Navy is accepting applications from Reserve dental officers for appointment in the Dental Corps, USN. Such officers may be serving on active or inactive duty in the grades of lieutenants or lieutenants (junior grade) but must be under 37 years of age. Reserve dentists on inactive duty must have had previous military experience other than training duty to apply.

Applicants on active duty should submit letter requests for consideration to the Chief of Naval Personnel via their commanding officer. A special Fitness Report, two copies of the Report of Medical Examination and a Report of Medical History should accompany the application. All of those requests should be received in the Bureau of Naval Personnel prior to 15 Oct. 1951.

Freedom of Communication

A move to amend the pending Reserve bill so as to give additional assurance to Service personnel of their freedom to write to members of Congress has been made by Representative Jacob J. Javits (R-N. Y.). The recent Selective Service Act contained a provision designed to prevent reprisals against service personnel for letters they may write to Congressmen.

In a statement before the Brooks Subcommittee of the House Committee on Armed Services, Mr. Javits said: "Freedom of communication to members of Congress assured by Section 4 of the Selective Service Act as amended by PL 51 should be preserved in the administrative phase, so long as it is neither contemptuous or deals with classified material. The Navy, for example, is about to issue new regulations on the subject; I believe the Committee should scrutinize the whole matter carefully to be sure the spirit rather than just the letter of the congressional enactment is fully observed."

Then the following colloquy took place:

Rep. Clemente—"I don't know how we could cope with the situation about correspondence in this bill. How do you suggest that we do that?"

Rep. Javits—"It is a question that has come from the reservists and if the committee can't deal with it in this bill, if it is not germane, why that is that. But I mention it because it has come up for men who have been called up and it came in connection with their complaints. Some men have told me orally that they said they wouldn't write because they feel the consequences of a communication."

Rep. Brooks—"Of course, their communications would normally go into their files. But that shouldn't be in itself an objection. If a man writes a letter, then he knows it is going to be preserved, just like you preserve a letter in your files."

Rep. Javits—"I think they were kind of scared by this Evans case which received wide publicity, as the chairman and members know, and which kind of worried men about what they could and couldn't say. Now I agree that that was very strong medicine. But the principle was there. That is a letter that had been written to one outside the Armed Services and there was a disciplinary action as a result. Now, whether justified or unjustified, men do get a little gun-shy when they see such a situation."

Rep. Brooks—"We might go into that case to see what the facts were."

Rep. Javits—"I think that might be very useful. If an airing of that situation would indicate that there was good reason for what occurred, I think the other men who just read about it casually would be much less concerned."

Rep. Clemente—"Does the gentleman suggest that in the files these letters are placed in, there is any notation on them that would in a way prejudice the man for writing a letter? For instance, I noticed the initials 'PI' and 'CA.' It was only later I found out 'PI' is political influence and 'CA' is Congressional assistance. They may use a new one and say Washington means 'W' or something. Have you had any such experience?"

Rep. Javits—"I haven't had any experience about such notation."

VR-32 Gets New Skipper

Marines Appoint 2d Lts.

The Marine Corps has asked commanding officers to recommend enlisted men, both Regulars and Reservists on active duty, for appointment to the rank of second lieutenant in the Marine Corps Reserve.

Recommendations, in order to receive "immediate consideration," should reach Headquarters by 15 Oct., the Corps said. All nominees will then be screened and those who are eligible will be ordered to appear before the nearest Officer Procurement Interview Board.

Candidates selected will be placed on a roster of candidates available for Officer Candidate Screening. "As the needs of the Marine Corps for additional officer personnel require," Headquarters said, "such enlisted men will be ordered to Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va., for Officer Candidate Screening." Those who successfully complete the screening course will be appointed second lieutenants.

The Marine Corps also said that "within quota limitations" those men who are best qualified will probably be offered appointments in the Regular Marine Corps within a year of their initial commissioning in the Reserve.

Women Marines to Pacific

Women Marines are going to the Pacific early in October for the first time since World War II. They will be assigned to headquarters, Fleet Marine Force Pacific, at Pearl Harbor, for administrative duties.

The first detachment will consist of one officer and 17 enlisted women. The enlisted personnel will be ordered from Marine Corps activities throughout the country.

Marine Corps Headquarters said it had no plans for sending its women members overseas except to the Hawaiian Islands. Lt. Col. Julia E. Hamblet has already reported for duty on the staff of the Commanding General, Fleet Marine Force, Pacific.

Reactivate Marine Bn

The Marine Corps has reactivated the 4th Recruit Training Battalion at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

The MCRD G-1, Lt. Col. W. H. Best, said the battalion was formed to handle the increased recruit load resulting from selective service quotas. The Corps will receive approximately 13,000 draftees during this month and September.

Lt. Col. John Hefti is in command of the new battalion.

Nominate Marine Generals

The President this week nominated the following officers of the Marine Corps for temporary appointment to the grade of brigadier general:

William W. Davies, Reginald H. Ridgely, Jr., William G. Manley, Lenard B. Cresswell.

Presents Flag

Vice Adm. William M. Callaghan, Commander, Military Sea Transportation Service, this week presented a flag of the SS Wake Forest Victory to Representative Charles B. Deane (D-N. C.). The flag was a gift to the faculty and students of Wake Forest University.

The Navy Is "Ready"

Under Secretary of the Navy Francis P. Whitehair said this week that the U. S. Navy "is rapidly expanding" and "will be ready to meet any eventuality."

Speaking at the Cuba Day Celebration in Miami, Fla., on 19 Aug., the new Under Secretary said that the Navy and Marine Corps are strong and "will remain strong." Come what may, he said, the Navy "will control the seas."

New Marine Uniform Issue

The Marine Corps will issue all new men two tropical worsted uniforms in the future. Those who entered the Corps prior to 1 July will not receive the new uniform as an item of issue, but may purchase it if they so desire.

Honor Lt. Kohen

Lt. (jg) Roland J. Kohen, MC, USNR, has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal for heroic action while attached to Headquarters 2d Battalion, 23d Infantry Regiment, 2d Infantry Division.

Study Commissary Measure

Secretary of the Navy Dan A. Kimball said this week that the Navy is studying the House-approved amendment to the appropriations bill which would make it necessary for the services to absorb overhead costs at commissaries.

In his first press conference since he took the oath of office, Secretary Kimball declared that "most of the commissaries are in places where the people don't get very good service," and added that the Navy is "concerned" about the problem. The lot of service personnel is not very good as it is, he said, and it shouldn't be made "more burdensome."

Mr. Kimball also discussed the Navy's carrier-building program and the proposed expansion of the Marine Corps.

Opposes Marine Expansion

He said he opposes any increase in the size of the Marine Corps and believes the Marine Commandant should not be made a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. A bill to raise Marine strength to 400,000 and give General Clifton B. Cates, the Marine Commandant, equal status with the chiefs of the Army, Navy, and Air Force, is now before the Congress.

Secretary Kimball said the Marine Corps "is big enough as it is." He emphasized that the Corps "is a part of the Navy," and said, "I don't think the Commandant of the Marine Corps should be on the Joint Chiefs." He added, however, that he did believe General Cates should act as an advisor to the JCS.

Big Carriers

When questioned about the Navy's new, so-called supercarrier, the Navy Secretary said, "It won't be the last or biggest" carrier which the Navy will request. At first, Mr. Kimball said that the Navy doesn't plan to ask for any additional large carriers until the new 60,000-ton vessel is completed. Later, however, he appeared at a subsequent briefing at the Pentagon to amend his remarks.

"What I should have told you," he said, "was that we would not ask for any additional carriers until such time as our basic plans and test on the present carrier are completed."

The Navy Secretary said it should be possible to tell "sometime within the next six or eight months" what the performance of the new carrier will be. "Probably at that time," he said, "we will ask for additional carriers in the next few years as the needs occur." He added that the Navy "will not wait until this carrier is completed until we ask for additional ones."

Mr. Kimball denied that the Joint Chiefs of Staff have been asked to approve any additional carriers at the present time.

Admiral Heads JCS Office

Rear Adm. John R. Redman, USN, will become director of communications-electronics of the Joint Chiefs of Staff about 1 Sept.

Former director of communications of the Navy Department Admiral Redman relieves Maj. Gen. H. M. McClelland, USAF. Capt. Wilfred B. Goulett, USN, assistant director of Navy communications, will become the acting director.

Chaplains to Active Duty

For the first time in the present emergency, active duty orders are being issued to a number of Naval Reserve chaplains on other than a voluntary basis.

The Navy Chaplains Corps is the last group of Naval Reserves whose members have been involuntarily ordered to active duty. The Navy said that needs of an expanding service, together with a drop during recent months in the number of chaplains volunteering made the move necessary.

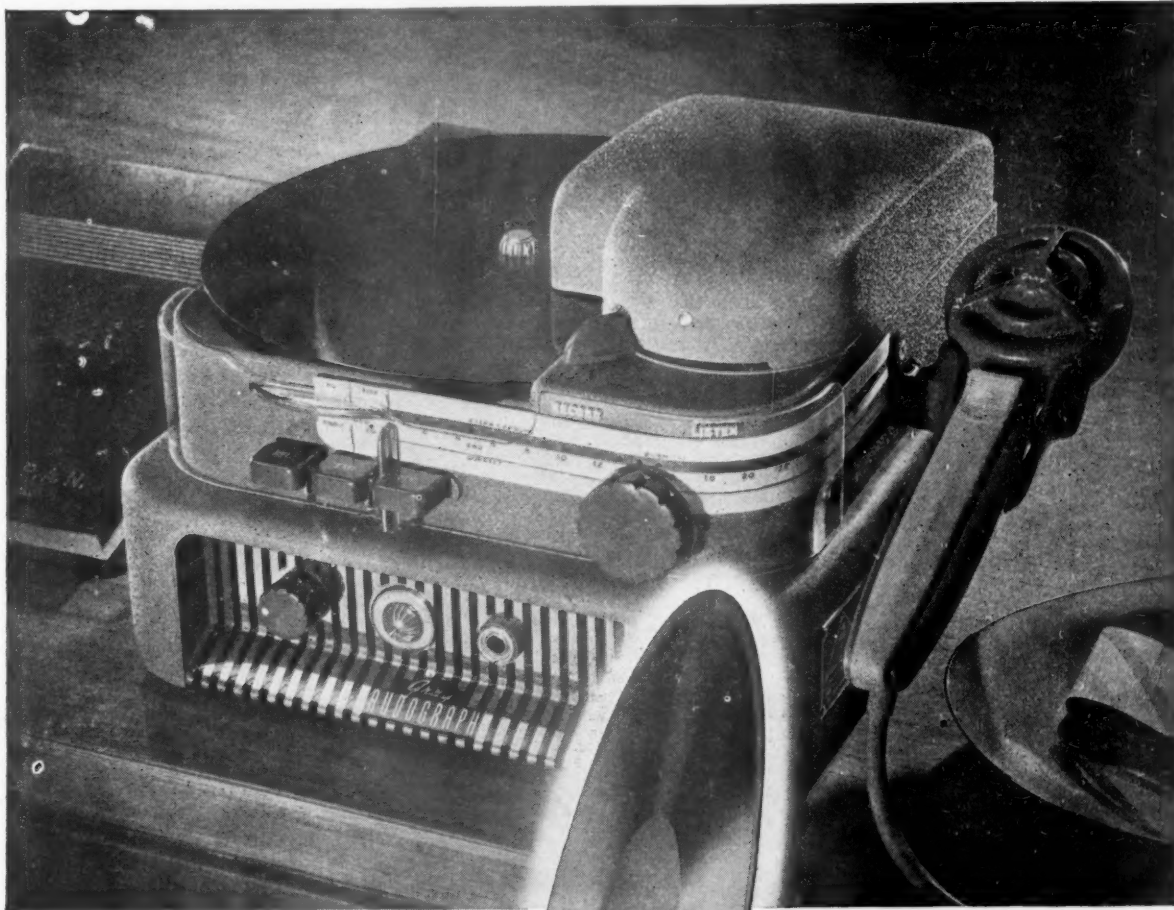

When you move, notify the Army Navy Air Force Journal of your change of address so you will not miss any issues.

Release Navy Reserves

Unless sooner released by the Chief of Naval Personnel, any officer of the Volunteer Reserve who served on active duty for 12 months or more in any branch of the Armed Forces between 7 Dec. 1941 and 2 Sept. 1945 will be released upon application after completion of 17 months' active duty since 25 June 1950. Officers in critical specialties may be retained for 24 months, the Navy said.

All Navy Reserve officers now on active duty or who may be ordered later may anticipate being released upon completion of 24 months' service, with the exception of a few categories.

New Record for dictating efficiency

One GRAY AUDOGRAPH plastic disc holds over an hour's dictation. That's more than 28 type-written pages — a record no other dictating machine can touch!

Join efficiency-conscious users everywhere who are putting time to more profitable use with versatile GRAY AUDOGRAPH. Simply sound-write memos, sales reports, conferences and correspondence. Your office output will increase 30% ... and your secretary will be free for other important work.

AUDOGRAPH's operation is unbelievably simple. One flick of a finger and you're recording. No arms to lift or adjust; relax and let AUDOGRAPH do the work! Discs are feather-weight, easy to file and can be resurfaced for reuse up to 50 times ... this means there's no discarding after one recording.

AUDOGRAPH is tops with secretaries, too. The exclusive electromatic index flashes a red light to indicate approaching corrections and green signals for ends of messages. Your voice comes over with bell-clarity ... and tone control allows full treble-to-bass range.

Dictation is easier — with AUDOGRAPH!

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Graduate Med. Examiners

Seventy-one medical officers of the U. S. Air Force received diplomas Saturday at graduation exercises of the School of Aviation Medicine held in the Randolph Field (Tex.) officers' club. Guest speaker was Maj. Gen. Dan C. Ogle, Deputy Surgeon General of the Air Force. The diplomas, designating each officer as an Aviation Medical Examiner, were presented by Brig. Gen. Otis O. Benson, Jr., Commandant of the aeromedical school.

Although the student officers received their Aviation Medical Examiner diplomas, they will not actually acquire the AME rating until successfully completing a three-months supervised preceptorship in the field.

Among the 71 doctors graduated, 19 had previously experienced such varying military duties as aviation cadet, pilot, glider pilot, navigator, and duty with infantry, field artillery, tank destroyer and minesweeper units. Sixteen had experienced overseas service. One of these was Lt. James F. Van Pelt, Jr., navigator on the B-29 Superfort that dropped the atomic bomb on Nagasaki. Another was Capt. Kay R. Cutler, a B-17 pilot who was shot down over Europe and spent nine months in a German prison camp. Ranking member of the class, and the only full colonel, was Col. Raymond E. Duke, a regular Air Force officer.

Dedicate Spaatz Field

The people of Berks County, Pa., and a host of aviation associates joined in the dedication of General Carl A. Spaatz Field this week, named in honor of Civil Air Patrol's National Executive Board Chairman and an airman of world renown.

General and Mrs. Spaatz were there to greet a number of friends and military associates, including Gen. George C. Kenney, who recently retired as commandant of the USAF Air University; Lt. Gen. James H. (Jimmie) Doolittle, USAF, Ret.; and Maj. Gen. Earl S. Hoag, USAF, special assistant to the Chief of Staff for Reserve forces.

U. S. AIR FORCE

Pilot Wins Medal of Honor

The Congressional Medal of Honor was awarded posthumously this week to Air Force Maj. Louis J. Seville, USAF, who dove into an enemy target after his plane had been severely damaged by anti-aircraft fire. It was the first award of the medal to an Air Force officer in the Korean war.

The citation read in part:

"Major Louis J. Seville, United States Air Force, distinguished himself by conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of his life above and beyond the call of duty near Hamchang, Korea, on 5 Aug. 1950. During an attack on a camouflaged area containing a concentration of enemy troops, artillery, and armored vehicles, Major Seville's F-51 aircraft was severely damaged by anti-aircraft fire. Although fully cognizant of the short period he could remain airborne, he deliberately ignored the possibility of survival by abandoning the aircraft or by crash landing and continued his attack against the enemy forces threatening the security of friendly ground troops. In his determination to inflict maximum damage upon the enemy, Major Seville again exposed himself to the intense fire of enemy gun batteries and dived on the target to his death."

French Award to AF Unit

The 57th Fighter Group has been awarded the French Croix de Guerre with Palm by the French Minister of National Defense.

The citation said that the "elite fighter plane unit" had "rendered effective aid to the French Expeditionary Corps during the campaigns of Italy and France," during World War II.

"During a brilliant feat of arms," the citation read, "it brought about the famous massacre of Cap Bon on 16 April 1943," and "its coordinated effort with the French troopers permitted the capture of Rome, thanks to the halting and destruction on the Florence-Arezzo front of the Herman Goering Division."

Advertisers in the Army Navy Air Force Journal support the Armed Forces and are familiar with their requirements.

Win SAC Competitions

The 97th Bomb Wing of the Eighth Air Force and the Second Bomb Wing of the Second Air Force shared honors in the Third Annual Strategic Air Command Bombing and Navigation Competition at MacDill AFB, Fla., the 97th coming out on top in the bombing phase and the 2d capturing the navigation trophy.

The Fairchild Trophy—a new award made this year by the Howard Hughes Aircraft Corporation to the Strategic Air Command wing scoring the best results in both the bombing and navigation of the competition—went to the 97th Bomb Wing. The 509th Bomb Wing, also of the Eighth Air Force, was the runner-up.

The 97th is commanded by Col. Jack Ryan and is located at Biggs AFB, Tex. Commander of the Second Bomb Wing is Brig. Gen. Frederick Glanzberg. Its headquarters are at Hunter AFB, Savannah, Ga.

The crew of Aircraft-Commander Maj. D. Poston, 43d Bomb Wing, Davis-Monthan AFB, turned in the best total bombing score for the competition. Bombardier of the winning bomber crew was 1st Lt. R. B. MacPhee and the Wing Commander is Col. William Fisher.

Second place went to the crew of Maj. William N. McGuire, 509th Bomb Wing, Walker AFB. The crew bombardier was Capt. E. C. Kubler. The crew of Capt. H. K. Williams, Second Bomb Wing, Hunter AFB, captured third place. The bombardier on this crew was Capt. L. B. Polk.

Best navigation results were achieved by the crew of Capt. D. A. Hurlburt, 301st Bomb Wing, 2d Air Force, Barksdale AFB. Navigator of the crew was 1st Lt. L. C. Alton. The Wing Commander is Col. Horace Wade.

Runner-up honors for the navigation trophy went to the crew of Maj. W. F. Seith, Second Bomb Wing, Hunter AFB, whose navigator was Maj. M. F. McVicker. Maj. Robert Walker's crew, 5th Bomb Wing, Travis AFB, 15th Air Force, captured third place. Navigator on the third place crew was Capt. L. Crose.

The leading crew of the wing scoring the best combined bombing and navigation results was that of Maj. E. F. Sayers, of the 97th Bomb Wing which won the Fairchild Trophy. Ashtrays were presented to individual members of the crew whose bombardier was Capt. A. T. Crisculo and whose navigator was Capt. R. L. Hill.

More than 700 crewmen, flying B-29's and B-50's, participated in the five days and nights of the Competition from MacDill. In addition, B-36's staged from Carswell AFB, Fort Worth, Tex.

One of the primary purposes of the bombing and navigation competition was to test the men and materiel of SAC, according to Col. S. E. Manzo, chief of the training division and directorate of operations for the Command.

The SAC contestants—30 picked crews of the Command—received high praise from Maj. Gen. Joseph H. Atkinson, commanding general of the Second Air Force and host to the event and Maj. Gen. Frank A. Armstrong, Jr., commanding general of the Sixth Air Division at MacDill.

USAF Institute Grads

The USAF Institute of Technology at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio this week graduated 77 Air Force officers from one-year courses in industrial administration, electronics, and engineering sciences.

Maj. Gen. St. Claire Streett, Acting Commanding General, Air Materiel Command, addressed the class.

Top academic honors went to Lt. Maxwell O. Johnson, Jr., Lt. James D. Morris, and Capt. Frank J. Augustyn who led the industrial administration, engineering sciences and electronics classes respectively.

Graduating with distinction were: Lt. Maxwell O. Johnson, Jr., Comdr. James W. Williams (USCG), Maj. James C. Grove, Maj. William R. Latham, Lt. James D. M. Morris, Maj. Isaac O. Winfree, Lt. Col. Gerard A. LaRocca, Lt. Gaylord MacCartney, Capt. Frank J. Augustyn, Capt. Robert D. Savage, and Maj. Louis Schaffer.

Officers who completed the electronics course were:

Capt. R. O. Boaz, Capt. L. E. Clark, Maj. F. M. Keene, Jr., Capt. R. F. Keeling, Capt. J. E. Lawyer, Capt. D. E. Riggle, Capt. A. J. Rose, Maj. H. G. Russell, Capt. R. B. Savage, Lt. Col. O. J. Schulte, Capt. F. D. Shipley, Capt. R. E. Smith, Capt. L. K. Stark, Capt. L. F. Thumser, Jr., Maj. C. J. Trzyna, Capt. J. P. Walsh, and Capt. L. C. Wright.

Completing the industrial administration course were:

Capt. F. J. Augustyn, Lt. C. D. Bacon, Maj. V. F. Creighton, Maj. J. H. Doolittle, Jr., Capt. C. Fox, Maj. W. B. Helms, Capt. J. W. Heyroth, Maj. J. J. Jones, Capt. A. W. Kinny, Jr., Capt. G. E. Laimore, Capt. A. C. Lemon, Jr., Maj. H. L. Moffat, Capt. E. W. Moody, Capt. E. R. Regia, Capt. P. E. Rova, Capt. V. J. Sarte, Maj. L. Schaffer, Capt. C. A. Smith, Capt. C. L. Tucker, Maj. H. E. Walmer, Capt. G. H. White, Jr., Capt. V. M. White, Capt. M. C. Wiley, Jr.

Finishing work in the graduate industrial administration course were:

The graduate engineering sciences class included:

Lt. M. G. Apt, Capt. H. H. Benoy, Lt. R. R. Galt, Lt. S. E. Hilovsky, Lt. Col. W. L. Jobanek, Lt. Col. G. A. LaRocca, Lt. A. F. Learmonth, Lt. G. MacCartney, Lt. J. D. M. Morris, Lt. J. E. Pashall, Lt. M. R. Richards, Maj. C. R. Silliman, Lt. J. L. Umlauf, Lt. R. M. Webster, Jr., Maj. I. O. Winfree.

Brig. Gen. L. I. Davis, USAF Commandant, awarded the diplomas and Reverend Wendell Franklin Rex, Air Chaplain, Air Materiel Command, gave the invocation.

12th AF Bolsters Fund

Officers and airmen of the Twelfth Air Force in Germany have contributed more than $41,000 to the 1951 fund-raising drive of the Air Force Aid Society.

Erlding Air Base, site of the 85th Air Depot Wing, for the second year in a row led the Twelfth Air Force installations in raising funds for the Air Force's own emergency fund with $22,714.28. A membership drive among the base's 3,000 officers and airmen, a raffle, a "fun for the fund" carnival and other special activities contributed to this record amount.

Commands Airport Unit

Capt. William K. Bush has assumed command of the 1025th Air Base Squadron at National Airport, Washington. D. C. He succeeds Maj. Clifford Baxter, who becomes executive officer of the 1025th Air Base Group.

Second-Round USAF Promotions Planned

AS THE JOURNAL this week received additional names of officers given promotions by world-wide major Air Force commands in the first round of temporary advancements, USAF Headquarters dispatched to the field new instructions pertaining to the second cycle of temporary promotions.

Major commanders were ordered to report not later than 15 Sept. to USAF Headquarters the number of Regular and non-Regular officers eligible for advancement to the ranks of colonel, lieutenant colonel, major and captain.

After this information is received at the Pentagon, promotion quotas will be furnished to each major command.

The major commands will not be permitted to select and recommend any officers in excess of the promotion quotas.

The Air Force dispatch stressed that "in no case will instructions to boards include any directive that certain categories or types of officers will or will not be given favorable consideration."

It was stated that membership of all boards is to include appropriate non-Regular representation.

The Air Force told major commanders that they must identify all officers, including those of the Medical Service and Chaplains, assigned to their commands as of 1 Sept. who have been serving on active duty in their current grade since 1 March 1951 and who are eligible for promotion consideration under provisions cited here-with:

(1) To:	From:	Minimum AFCS as of 1 Sept. 51
Col.	1 Oct. 49 as Lt. Col. and 12 mos as Lt. Col.	12 mos as Lt. Col.
Lt. Col.	1 Dec. 49 as Maj.	12 mos as Maj.
Maj.	1 Feb. 50 as Capt.	12 mos as Capt.
Capt.	1 Apr. 50 as 1st Lt.	6 mos as 1st Lt.

(It was noted in the Air Force message to the field that when computing AFCS terminal leave service is considered within grade held prior to terminal leave promotion.)

(2) Air Force Reserve or Air National Guard officers serving on active duty in grades lower than those held in either component.

(3) All officers serving on active duty in a grade lower than the AFR grade they resigned in order to accept appointment in the ANG.

(4) All officers serving on active duty as lieutenant colonels who formerly served on active duty in the grade of colonel and who were reduced from that grade without prejudice.

(5) Also eligible, the Air Force stated, were all officers, exclusive of those reduced for cause, who hold or have held AFUS-Spot appointments in the grade of captain, major or lieutenant colonel, wherever currently assigned, who may be promoted to their current or former AFUS-Spot grades.

The Air Force instructions emphasized that necessary action is to be taken by the major commands to insure consideration in the second cycle of promotions of any officer who was carried on initial selection lists in the first round of advancements but who was finally promoted.

Major commanders were told that they are responsible for consideration of all eligible officers, except those of the Medical Service and Chaplains, assigned to their commands as of 1 Sept.

Eligible officers assigned to Detachments of Patients will be reported for consideration by a Headquarters USAF Selection Board.

The Air Force defined as follows the date of initial appointment to grade in which serving on active duty and said that in determining date of appointment in AUS terminal leave promotions in AUS will not be counted:

- Reserve Officers—Date of appointment in AUS, AFUS or USAFR, whichever is earliest.
- Air National Guard Officers—Date of appointment in AUS, AFUS, or ANGUS, whichever is earliest.
- Regular Officers—Date of appointment in AUS, AFUS or USAF, whichever is earliest.
- AFUS Officers—Date of appointment in AUS or AFUS, whichever is earlier.

Calendar of Legislation ACTION ON LEGISLATION

H.R. 5215. Supplemental Appropriation Bill. Reported by House Committee on Appropriations. Passed, amended, by House.

H.R. 3193. Increase of pension for veterans with non-service connected disability. Passed by House over veto of President.

H.R. 1199. Missing Persons Act amendment to provide for transportation of next of kin, baggage, furniture, automobile of personnel killed, missing, or captured abroad. House agreed to Senate amendments. To President.

H.R. 4260. Transfer of Quartermaster Experimental fuel station, Pike County, Mo., to Department of the Interior. Reported by Senate Committee on Armed Services.

S. 349. To assist the provision of housing and community facilities and services required in connection with the national defense. Senate and House adopted conference report. To President.

H.R. 5062. To extend (to ten years) the authority of the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs to appoint and employ retired officers without affecting their retired status. Reported by House Committee on Armed Services.

H.R. 3003. To authorize Rear Adm. Emory D. Stanley, USN-Ret., to accept employment with the Government of Peru. Reported by House Committee on Armed Services.

H.R. 5102. To authorize the Secretary of the Navy to enlarge existing water-supply facilities for the San Diego, Calif., area in order to insure the existence of an adequate water supply for naval and Marine Corps installations and defense production plants in such area. Reported, amended, by House Committee on Armed Services.

BILLS INTRODUCED

H.R. 5202. Rep. Ramsay (D-W. Va.). To promote the national defense by providing for appointment of cadets and midshipmen from the enlisted ranks.

H.R. 5175. Rep. Cunningham (R-Ia.). To provide for a standing army of one million men and for furnishing basic military training to the youth of America through membership in the National Guard and the Organized Reserves.

S. 2010. Sen. Moody (D-Mich.). To provide readjustment allowance for certain unemployed members of the Armed Forces who served in the active military, naval, or air service on or after 27 June 1950.

Decorate FEC Surgeon

Col. Thomas N. Page, Eighth Army Surgeon, received the First Bronze Oak Leaf Cluster to the Legion of Merit recently for exceptionally meritorious service. The award was presented by Lt. Gen. W. M. Hoge, USA, IX Corps Commander, in ceremonies held at the corps advanced command post in Korea.

Hare was primarily the home of the 2471st AF Reserve Training Center, the 2216th Air Base Sq. and the 4656th AB Sq.

O'Hare is, in addition to the 142d, the home of the 126th Bomb Wing, the 2471st AFRTS, the 1114th Special Air Missions Sq. and the 16th Weather Group. It is anticipated that these tenant units will soon move out, for the Fairchild Engine and Aircraft Corporation has been allotted a large portion of the Base facilities for production of C-119 Packets.

The Air Force recently announced the writing of a facilities contract for approximately $20,000,000 for use by Fairchild.

The buildings to be occupied were used by Douglas Aircraft during World War II to turn out C-54s. Other occupants of these buildings include: CAA, Ordnance, Bureau of Public Debt, a Government Procurement Office and a branch of the Smithsonian Institute.

The Fairchild plant, of course, will be another vital industrial organization protected by the F-85s of the 142d Fighter-Interceptor Wing.

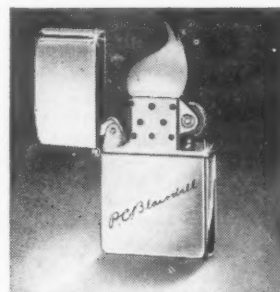

LABOR OUTPUT

In 24 out of a group of 26 manufacturing and non-manufacturing industries, output per man-hour rose between 1949 and 1950, according to the Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

"Our goal is to build up sufficient combined military strength to the end that the aggressors abroad in the world today will be deterred without recourse to another world war."—SECRETARY OF THE NAVY DAN A. KIMBALL.

OUR PRIORITY LIST

1. Establishment and operation of a Universal Training and Service program and the building up of readiness for industrial production for war as bases for an "enduring system of National Defense."
2. Continued scientific research and development, particularly in all new and unconventional devices and methods of warfare.
3. Revision of Career Compensation Act to correct injustices demonstrated by experience, including adequate compensation of junior officers with long service in enlisted grades. Permanent legislation for special pay for personnel actually engaged in combat with the enemy. More realistic allowances, including those for travel and per diem. Improved retirement pay for disabled and wounded personnel.
4. Early construction of adequate government quarters for Service personnel at all permanent stations, supplemented by government-sponsored private construction to meet expansion needs.
5. Continuation and extension of medical and dental care for Service families; provision for education at government expense of children of Service personnel at stations where suitable free public schools are not available; and similar benefits for dependents.
6. Restoration of military exemptions from Federal Income Tax, broadened to include all retired pay from taxation. Recall to active duty of militarily useful retired officers, together with liberalization of ban on dual compensation so that the government may utilize fully the services of all capable retired personnel.
7. A satisfactory and orderly promotion system for warrant officers to assure all qualified appointees of reaching top grade prior to retirement.
8. Adjustment of promotion procedures to meet current emergency needs and to assure retention on active duty of all qualified officers.

Corps of Engineers. Anyone who has undertaken to build a house or even a garage and has seen the cost mount in a few months, or a year, from the original estimates to the final figure, will not be much upset by the report of the House Appropriations Subcommittee on the Corps of Engineers Civil Works Program. This report cites large increases in the costs of civil works programs from the time of their authorization and surveys, dating back to 1944, to revised estimates for the carrying on of the work now. Entering into these increases are the enormous rise in prices of materials and labor, unforeseen conditions, structural and engineering modifications, relocations, land acquisition, and many other factors. Costs have mounted and conditions have changed—facts which everyone knows. But the Committee report uses such terms as "inadequate planning," "gross miscalculations," and the "lack of reasonably sound and reasonably reliable data." When these expressions are translated into news stories the public is likely to get an unfavorable impression of the Corps of Engineers. The fact is that the Corps has been doing these civil-works projects since 1824 and doing them honestly and efficiently even though often under political cross fire. There are always other interests both in the government and in civil life who would like to embarrass the Corps and to see the work taken from them. These interests were delighted with the report of the Hoover commission which sought to take civil works from the Corps of Engineers and turn it over to the Interior Department. It may well be possible that similar agitation led to the present investigation and report. However, even though the report is critical of the cost increases, one notes with satisfaction that there is not the slightest hint of changing the present system of civil works. In fact the report concludes with the statement that the "Corps of Engineers has demonstrated its awareness for the need of efficient, economical functioning, and is fully conscious of its responsibilities in civil works projects."

News Note, 17 Aug.: "Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston yesterday gave his—and the Government's—official go-ahead of the Wage Stabilization Board's plan for permitting wage increases to keep up with the cost of living."

We Wonder: Will the Government extend this policy to the Armed Services?

there is most welcome news to the Services. The ban against sending additional dependents to that area was instituted by General MacArthur shortly after the outbreak in Korea when all transportation facilities were being taxed to the utmost by the shipping of troops, weapons, and supplies to stem the Red forces. However, as General Ridgway recently wrote, the factors involved in resumption of dependent travel to Japan have had his earnest consideration from the moment he assumed command of that theater and now he has worked out the new plan for easing the situation. It may be anticipated, too, that Survivor Benefits for WACs?

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Upon reading in THE JOURNAL of 18 Aug. of the proposed "Pay-As-You-Go Plan" for survivors I find no provision for women in the services.

A woman in the service is not allowed to claim her husband as a dependent unless he is in fact dependent upon her due to physical inability to work. She may not claim her parents dependent unless again they are dependent in fact due to physical inability to support themselves. Women with children under eighteen years of age are not retained in the service—at least not in the Women's Army Corps.

A servicewoman, under the bill as it now stands, will be liable to have deducted from her pay the same amount as the men, rank for rank, in this "dependents' benefit" plan, but, in most cases, her family will never derive any benefit.

WAC-LI.

More Allowances Needed

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The Armed Services do not need a raise in pay—what they need is a raise in allowances to the point where they are sufficient for all ranks.

I have a solution for the "Captain, R. A." who complained about his plight in THE JOURNAL of 11 Aug. He can always get separated and re-enlist as a master sergeant. Then after duty hours he can live his own life. That was one of my foremost reasons for getting separated as a captain of Infantry in 1949. I can honestly say that I am now enjoying life, which I did not do during the five and a half years I spent as an officer.

there will be further liberalization of the policy as conditions improve. "It is fully realized," General Ridgway said recently, "that the forced separation of families is highly undesirable and, within my authority, it is my firm intention that this situation shall be alleviated just as soon as conditions justify."

SERVICE HUMOR

End Talk About Rotation

With the 2d Logistical Command, U. S. Army in Korea—For several months now the chief topic of conversation in Korea has been rotation. Not a minute has passed that "rotation" hasn't been mentioned by someone.

Finally it began to grate on the ears of one first sergeant in a reserve outfit. He assembled his company.

"Atten-shun!" came the order. Then in rapid succession: "Left face! Left face! Left face! Left face!"

"Now, men," said the sergeant, "you've all been rotated once and I don't want to hear that damn word again!"

Ban on Forced Retirements

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Reference your article concerning Congressman James E. Van Zandt's efforts to suspend forced retirement of military personnel for other than physical reasons—

It appears that this legislation is a serious step backward for the following reasons:

a. The present pay bill was passed to maintain vitality in the military establishment by forced attrition. All of us know, beyond argument, that military field commanders must be young, vigorous men if this country is to survive.

b. It is my understanding that, under the present law, officers may be retired and then immediately recalled to active duty from retired status for whatever service they may be capable of. This wise provision removes over-age and less capable officers from the line of promotion and at the same time permits the retention of their services so long as the national emergency requires. Retired personnel recalled to active duty could feel secure in the knowledge that, upon release, they would revert to retirement status and pay.

c. On the contrary, Representative Van Zandt would effectively stop the flow of youth and vitality toward the top by entrenching the present occupants of top staff positions into their jobs for the next three years.

I, therefore, strongly recommend that the present law be retained and clarified, if need be, by legislation defining the recall of retired personnel to active duty.

Colonel

Make It Cavalry!

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

What's in a name: cavalymen or armormen?

The specialists in mobility and shock have always been cavalymen, whether they were horseback or in tanks. Why change their hereditary title?

The Infantry has many weapons other than rifles and methods of transportation not possessed by Napoleon's "enfants," yet that arm has not altered its traditional name nor discarded its time-honored insignia.

G. I. Epperson,
1st Col., Cav.

IN what had all the earmarks of a carefully planned set-up, the Communists this week again broke off negotiations, this time on the pretext that a United Nations plane had bombed the Kaesong neutral zone.

In the middle of the night a Red colonel summoned American officers to show them "evidence" of the bombing. Col. A. J. Kinney, USAF, and Col. J. C. Murray, USMC, reported no scorched area such as would have been left by a napalm bomb, which the Reds charged had been dropped. There was a hole 24 inches in diameter and 12 inches deep, which Colonel Kinney said could not have been a bomb crater but might well have been caused by a hand grenade explosion pre-set in the ground. A piece of metal was shown, but it had flush riveting which is not used on our napalm bombs. Furthermore, the Reds would not permit them to view the alleged scene of the bombing in daylight, limiting the inspection to a rainy night. All reports from UN forces denied that any planes had been in the area on that night.

As General Ridgway was prompt to point out "the decision to declare all meetings 'off from this time,' which required a decision from a high level of command, could not have been arrived at, and transmitted to Colonel Chang, Communist liaison officer, for delivery to UN command officers, in the interval from 2320 on 20 Aug. to 0145 on 23 Aug."

Later, the Peiping radio indicated that the talks might be resumed very soon, thus indicating that the "incident" was merely another in the Red's series of attempts to keep the conference jittery.

Earlier a clash between a small North Korean guard unit and an unidentified armed group, evidently guerrillas, within the neutral zone surrounding Kaesong, threatened to disrupt Korean truce negotiations. A Communist patrol leader was killed and another Red soldier was seriously wounded in an ambush, reportedly by a band of about 20, mostly in civilian clothes. General Nam Il, senior Communist delegate to the Korean armistice conference, demanded a satisfactory explanation from the United Nations forces and immediate punishment of the truce violators.

A preliminary investigation disclosed that there were no military formations under Allied control anywhere near the Kaesong zone at the time of the skirmish. It appeared possible that the assailants of the Red patrol were guerrillas sympathetic to the South Korean cause, but operating independently.

This attitude of the Reds led to the suspicion that both of the episodes may have been deliberately staged by the Communists with a view to ending negotiations, and placing the blame on the Allies, or at least to inflame their followers to more bitter hatred of the United Nations. However, late this week Red commanders were quoted as seeking resumption of the "suspended" negotiations. A broadcast from Peiping and Pyongyang stressed there was nothing "final" in the break in the armistice talks.

► DESPITE THE AGITATION, whipped up over the apparent violation of the zone, the armistice negotiations were carried on until the new "incident" in an atmosphere of informality by a subcommittee representing both sides, but there were no tangible indications that progress was being made. On the contrary, enemy broadcasts, purporting to represent the views of the Red negotiators, declared that the talks were still bogged down over the location of the buffer zone.

The subcommittee was named solely for the purpose of recommending the location and delimitation of the neutral zone between the opposing forces. The widely divergent views on this subject have stalled progress in the truce talks for weeks and the creation of the subcommittee was a device through which it was hoped that a compromise might be reached. The United Nations is represented on the subcommittee by Maj. Gen. Henry I. Hodes, USA, Deputy Chief of Staff of the Eighth Army, and Rear Adm. Arleigh Burke, USN. The Communists designated Generals Hsieh Fang, of the Chinese Red Army, and Lee Song Cho, of the North Korean Army, as their appointees. The meetings held this week by the subcommittee were completely informal; there were no stenographers present, only interpreters; no speeches were made; no record was kept of the proceedings; and no communiques were issued. Early indications were that the pleasant atmosphere of the talks might produce satisfactory results, an optimistic expectation apparently not borne out by subsequent developments.

► SEVERAL UNITED STATES SENATORS, who served on the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees in the long hearings on the dismissal of General Douglas MacArthur, USA, from his Far East command, have urged, in the event the peace talks break down, the intensification of the Korean war, with air attacks on Red Chinese bases in Manchuria, and American support of an invasion of the Asiatic mainland by Chinese nationalists from Formosa, as proposed by General MacArthur. The two committees by a vote of 20 to 3 decided not to issue a formal report on the MacArthur hearings, but eight Republican members presented their views in a report highly critical of the removal of the Far Eastern commander.

The House of Representatives late last week passed the bill authorizing allocation of funds for foreign military and economic aid, after cutting approximately $1 billion from the total requested by the President. Mr. Truman had recommended a total authorization of $8.5 billion for both military and economic aid of non-Communist countries, principally European democracies, but this was cut by $650 million by the House Foreign Affairs Committee, and the House, itself, by a close vote lopped $350 million more from the bill. Nearly all of the reduction is in economic aid. The administration is hopeful of securing in the Senate restoration of at least some of the funds cut from the bill by the House, but there are reports of considerable Senate support for even greater reductions in the total to be authorized. As passed by the House the bill abolished the Economic Co-operation Administration, and sets up a new executive agency to handle both military and economic aid, taking over also the co-ordinating functions of the State Department, and consulting with the State and Defense Departments as to policies.

► PRESIDENT TRUMAN this week sent to the Congress the Russian message replying to a Congressional resolution, expressing friendship for the Russian people and a desire for the continued maintenance of peace. The Soviet Presidium in its reply reiterated previous assertions of the peaceful intentions of Russia, but bitterly attacked the United States for numerous specific instances of alleged unfriendliness, including recent American actions drastically curtailing exports of strategic supplies to Russia and other Communist countries.

In sending the reply to Congress the President said that he planned to answer the Russian message later, and would request the Soviet government to inform the Russian people of its contents. The President warned Congress that the Russian message gives no assurance of any change in the hostile and expansive policies of the Soviet Union. If Russia is really sincere in a desire for peace the President suggested that its government could stop flouting the authority of the United Nations, stop supporting aggression, stop promoting subversive movements in foreign countries, and it could join in seeking to find means for real disarmament and controlling atomic energy in the interest of peace.

Heads AEC Military Application—Col. Kenneth E. Fields, USA, who has seen considerable prior service with the national atomic energy program, is the new Director of the Division of Military Application of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission.

He replaces Brig. Gen. James McCormack, jr., USAF, who becomes Special Assistant to the Deputy Chief of Staff, Development, at USAF Headquarters.

From July 1950 to July 1951, Colonel Fields was assigned to the Military Defense Assistance Program in Teheran, Iran, and prior to that was on the Staff and Faculty of the National War College in Washington, D. C., from August 1949 to July of last year.

His experience in the atomic energy program began with his assignment on 11 Nov. 1945 as Assistant to Lt. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, USA-Ret., Commanding General, Manhattan Project, in which capacity he served until 10 April 1947. Between that time and 6 Aug. 1949, Colonel Fields was Assistant to the Director of Military Application for the AEC.

General McCormack, whom AEC Chairman Gordon Dean credits with "much of the success for our present closely integrated, efficiently operating weapons activity," has served as Director of the Division of Military Application since its creation in February 1947.

The Atomic Energy Act of 1946 stipulates that this position must be filled by a member of the Armed Forces.

Canada's Rotation Plan For Korea—Minister of National Defense Brooke Claxton has declared it will be Canada's policy to make eligible for return from Korea men who have approximately 12 months' service. First troops set for return are men of the 2d Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, who have been in the Far East since last December.

The Defense Minister stipulated that no man should be required to serve more than one winter in Korea.

Far East Rotation Plans—In addition to the plans for rotation of personnel from the Far East which were carried in the 11 Aug. issue of THE JOURNAL, FEC Headquarters has listed other factors which will be considered in the compilation of "constructive service."

Fractional periods of less than one-half month will not be considered in computing the total amount of constructive service, an FEC announcement received here this week said. However, when the fractional part of a month is equal to one-half month or more, the next higher full month total will be reported.

If an individual is wounded in action in Korea (for which he receives the Purple Heart) he will receive the same constructive service credit for his period of hospitalization as though the time had been spent with the unit to which he was assigned on the day he was evacuated. Personnel hospitalized as a result of injury and non-battle casualty (except self-inflicted wounds) will count the period of hospitalization as time served in the zone where hospitalized.

Soldiers who return to duty from confirmed POW or MIA status will receive the same constructive service credit for the period of absence as though the time had been spent in the combat zone.

Those on emergency leave, temporary duty or detached service in the Zone of Interior (United States) or zones within the FEC for periods of less than 60 days will continue to receive the same constructive months of service they would normally accumulate in their assigned organization. Those absent on TDY or DS to other zones within the FEC for periods greater than 60 days will receive the constructive months of service specified for the zone in which the TDY or DS is spent. Personnel currently in the ZI on emergency leave, and those subsequently so ordered, will be considered eligible for permanent change of station (PCS) if they have accrued a total of 32 months actual or constructive service.

Individuals coming to the FEC directly from other overseas assignments will be credited with constructive service for their total overseas time. This will be done by computing the fractional period of the required tour of duty completed at the previous overseas station and crediting such personnel with an equivalent proportion of constructive service in Japan.

The actual amount of constructive service required before an individual becomes eligible for rotation will be announced each month for each command of the FEC by the Commander-in-Chief. Initially, it will probably vary from command to command.

New Deputy Nurse Chief—Col. Mary G. Phillips, Chief of the Army Nurse Corps, was accompanied by her new deputy, Lt. Col. Ruby F. Bryant, when she visited Valley Forge Army Hospital, Phoenixville, Pa., this week to inspect the nursing service and check on research studies in nursing service management.

Lt. Col. Rosalie Colhoun of the Army Nurse Corps arrived in Washington, D. C., this week to begin a duty tour in the Office of the Army Surgeon General. She has served as chief nurse at First Army headquarters, Governors Island, N. Y., for the past two years and will be replaced there by Maj. Margaret Harper, recently chief nurse at Ft. Sill, Okla.

MATS Atlantic Deputy—Col. Joseph G. Hopkins, Deputy Chief of Staff for Transport Operations of the Pacific Division, Military Air Transport Service, has been named Deputy Commander of MATS' Atlantic Division. He will replace Col. John W. Warren, assigned as Deputy Commander of the U. S. Defense Force in Iceland.

ORC Publications Index—The Army has released SR 140-1-1, dated 1 Aug. 1951, which presents an index to publications pertaining to the Organized Reserve Corps. An alphabetical index is included.

General Counsel Resigns—Following four years of service as legal adviser to Secretaries of Defense James V. Forrestal, Louis Johnson and General George C. Marshall, Felix E. Larkin has resigned as General Counsel of the Department of Defense, effective 31 Aug. He will return to his home in New York City and will be associated in an executive capacity with W. R. Grace and Company.

Mr. Larkin, recognized as one of the nation's outstanding authorities on Unification laws, was hailed by General Marshall for "such Department-wide improvements as a Uniform Code of Military Justice, a single-package public works program, and a highly efficient Legislative Conference."

General Marshall, in a letter to Mr. Larkin, said "the Department has been fortunate to have had your services over the past four years, and I hope we may continue to call upon you from time to time for advice and counsel."

No successor to Mr. Larkin has been named as yet.

Supplies for the Williamsburg—The question was raised recently in the House of Representatives as to how the food consumed by President Truman and his guests aboard the Presidential yacht Williamsburg is procured, and who pays for it.

Representative Errett P. Scrivner (R-Kans.) said that he was informed by the Assistant Director of the Budget for the Navy that the President has a separate mess aboard the Williamsburg and that he buys his food and pays the regular prices, which are the same as those paid for food in the officers' mess for the items desired. The cost, Mr. Scrivner said, "is paid from the President's own personal fund." The expenses of the men and officers on board the yacht are paid by the Navy.

A similar situation exists in regard to the Presidential plane Independence. The pay of the crew and the expenses for maintaining and operating the plane come from Air Force appropriations. Some of the incidental expenses, as in the case of the Williamsburg, are paid from White House funds.

Women in Royal Canadian Air Force—The RCAF will begin recruiting women for the reserve force 1 Sept. Recruiting of women for the Regular force began 1 June and the first 100 recently arrived at St. Johns, P. Q., manning depot for basic training.

The RCAF plans to enlist approximately 2,000 girls to work with reserve fighter squadrons, radar units, medical units and Reserve headquarters. The women will receive up to 71 days full Air Force pay per year, working during their spare time.

Recruits must be between 18 and 29 years of age and meet existing RCAF medical standards. They will receive the smart new RCAF airwomen's uniform.

Chief Nurse of Eighth Army—Maj. Ruby G. Bradley has been named chief nurse of the Eighth Army in Korea. She replaces Lt. Col. Madeline Desmond, who will return to the United States for reassignment. Major Bradley was formerly chief nurse of the 171st Evacuation Hospital in Korea where she has served since the Inchon landing. During World War II, Major Bradley was a prisoner-of-war in the Philippines for three years.

A farewell reception was given for Colonel Desmond on 4 Aug. at the 10th Station Hospital in Korea. Present were Lt. Col. Elizabeth Mahoney, chief nurse of Japan Logistical Command; Maj. Edith A. Aynes, chief nurse of the 279th General Hospital in Japan; Lt. Col. Alice M. Gritsavage, chief nurse, Far East Command, and chief nurses from the majority of the Army hospitals in Korea. Nurses from the 4th Field Hospital presented the ex-EUSAK nurse with hand luggage and the nurses from the 2d Logistical Command gave her an overnight case and a wardrobe bag.

General Feldman to Retire—Maj. Gen. Herman Feldman, The Quartermaster General of the Army, will retire on 30 Sept. 1951, after reaching the statutory retirement age of 62 on 10 Sept. No successor has yet been announced, but it is understood that Maj. Gen. George A. Horkan, who recently returned from Germany, where he served as Chief Quartermaster of the European Command, will probably receive the appointment.

General Feldman became The Quartermaster General on 21 March 1949, after a distinguished military career, which began 10 Nov. 1907, with his enlistment in the Army as a private of field artillery. He won his commission in 1917 during World War I and reached the rank of major general in 1948. During World War II General

Feldman served as Assistant Chief of Staff G-4 of the Service of Supply in England and in the Mediterranean theater, and later served on the logistics staff of the Commander-in-Chief, United States Pacific Fleet and Pacific Oceans Areas.

General Horkan entered the army as a commissioned officer on 15 Aug. 1917, after previous enlisted service in the Georgia National Guard. He served in the infantry in France during World War I. During World War II he became Commandant of the Quartermaster School at Camp Lee, Va., and later Commanding General of that camp. He went to Europe in August 1948 to become Chief Quartermaster.

C. of C. Questions Unity—The United States Chamber of Commerce in its weekly report "Business Action" charged this week that "Unification of the Armed Forces is far from complete, and the promise of efficiency that it holds will not be fulfilled without a better spirit of cooperation and a greater degree of interdependence than now exists." There is danger, the report states, that "unification" of the Armed Forces may simply substitute three military organizations for the two we had before.

The article in "Business Action," seemingly based on items in the daily press, said that the Air Force is trying to get rid of $5 million worth of old style khaki uniforms and that the Navy and Marine Corps fliers withdrew from Army-Air Force training. In Korea, the article contended, "we are actually operating four distinct air services—the Air Force, Marine Air, Navy Air, and the little-known but growing Army Air Organization."

Fate of Officers in R-36 Protest—With the announcement this week of the assignment of Rear Adm. Arleigh Burke to the Office of Naval Operations, it is interesting to note what has happened to the members of the Navy-Marine Corps group which testified during the unification squabble in 1949.

All together, 19 active duty Navy officers testified during the hearings. Of this number, one (Admiral Louis E. Denfeld) was relieved of duty, two (Admirals W. H. P. Blandy and Thomas C. Kincald) were retired, one (Admiral Richard L. Conolly) reverted to the rank of Vice Adm. by virtue of a new assignment, one (Admiral Arthur W. Radford) although the Navy's senior Admiral, has been twice passed over for selection as Chief of Naval Operations, and six have been promoted to higher rank. One officer (Vice Adm. R. B. Carney) was promoted to the rank of Admiral, one (Brig. Gen. Vernon E. Megee) was promoted to Major General, two (Captains Arleigh Burke and F. M. Trapnell) were promoted to Rear Admiral, and two Commanders (A. B. Metzger and Eugene Tatom) were promoted to Captain. Another officer, Capt. J. H. Sides, is eligible for promotion to Rear Admiral next year.

Those whose status has remained unchanged include General C. B. Cates, Marine Corps Commandant; Rear Adm. R. A. Ofstie, now on sea duty; Capt. J. S. Thach, a fairly junior captain; Comdr. W. N. Leonard, with the Weapons Systems Evaluation Group in Washington; Comdr. W. I. Martin, Office of Naval Operations, and Lt. Comdr. E. W. Harrison, assigned to AirPac, San Diego.

New OCAFF Medical Chief—Brig. Gen. Earle Standlee, who until recently was Chief of the Plans and Policy Division, Office of Medical Services, in the Office of the Secretary of Defense, has reported for duty at Ft. Monroe, Va. He will succeed Brig. Gen. Robert P. Williams as Chief of the Army Field Forces Medical Section following General Williams' retirement at the end of this month.

Ships of the Fleet—The USS Montrose, attack transport attached to the Commander Amphibious Force Pacific Fleet, is returning to the West Coast from the Korean Theater. The ship, commanded by Capt. G. T. McGready, Jr., has been in Far Eastern waters for about seven months.

The USS Pocono, amphibious force flagship, was de-mothballed last week-end and recommissioned at the New York Naval Shipyard, Brooklyn. Capt. R. V. Hull is in command of the 13,000-ton vessel, which will serve as communications and administrative headquarters for the Atlantic Fleet. Executive officer of the ship is Comdr. Louis Kenny. The Pocono will be the flagship of Vice Adm. R. P. Briscoe, Commander, Amphibious Forces, Atlantic Fleet.

The battleship Wisconsin was stuck for about two hours this week in the Hudson River after going aground on a New Jersey mudbank. The big vessel, commanded by Capt. Thomas Burrows, a 1925 Naval Academy graduate, suffered "no apparent damage" according to Rear Adm. Walter S. Delaney, Commandant of the Third Naval District.

Army Buys Horses for Turkey—A special procurement board composed of Army personnel from the Quartermaster General's office and Ft. Reno, Okla., is buying approximately 10,000 head of horses and mules for shipment to Turkey under ECA financing. Although being handled through ECA the purchase is being made under the Military Assistance Program. The animals were requested by the Turkish Army and the request was studied by our military mission there prior to approval. About 3,500 artillery pack mules, 600 cavalry troopers, and 500 field artillery draft horses will be bought. The announcement states that inquiries should be directed to Maj. Lee O. Hill, Remount Branch, Field Service Division, in Washington, or to Maj. C. D. Ramsell at Ft. Reno.

Considerable interest has been aroused in the announcement in light of the renewed agitation for the restoration of mounted cavalry and pack units for the U. S. Army. It is stated, however, that the purchases have no bearing on a change in American Army attitude toward the utilization of animals.

Meanwhile the current issue of Combat Forces, which was formerly the Infantry Journal before it combined with the Field Artillery Journal, takes cognizance of the movement by stating, "We are convinced that our friends, the lovers of horse cavalry, are now one war too late." The article continues: "If the tank, the jeep and the two-and-one-half-ton truck didn't completely replace the horse, the helicopter will. Is filling it in Korea, we should say. For where can a horse go that a helicopter can't go easier and quicker? And cheaper, too, we'll wager. And when the Army gets that convertiplane, even the jeep may become obsolete. We are not even sure that the Air Force as we know it won't become obsolete. And maybe in time, even the convertiplane. We are absolutely sure of only one outfit having a real and continuing future in warfare. And that's the ground combat fighter: rifleman and artilleryman. The guys who take and hold the ground."

Heads Ordnance Command—Brig. Gen. Thomas K. Vincent, USA, has assumed command of the Ordnance Training Command with headquarters at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md. General Vincent will also continue his duties as deputy commander of the Proving Ground. He will be responsible for the supervision, inspection and administration of the entire Ordnance training program at all installations and activities under control of the Chief of Ordnance.

Col. Gunnar C. Carlson of Moline, Ill., former OTC executive officer, will be deputy commander of the Training Command.

SERVICE SOCIAL NEWS

A GARDEN tea in honor of new members to be held at the home of Mrs. Frank A. Heileman, wife of the Chief of Transportation, will be the midseason activity of the Transportation Corps Women's Club. The tea is set for three o'clock on Wednesday, 29 Aug., at the Heileman residence, 19 Vernon Terrace, Bellehaven, Alexandria, Va.

According to the President, Mrs. Lawrence D. Lally, the tea is planned to provide a special greeting to the new members in the metropolitan area.

Receiving with the Honorary President, Mrs. Heileman, will be Mrs. Lally, Mrs. Frank S. Besson, Jr., wife of Brigadier General Besson, Assistant Chief of Transportation for Operations, Mrs. Calvin De Witt, Jr., wife of Brigadier General De Witt, Assistant Chief of Transportation for Administration, Mrs. Paul F. Yount, wife of Brigadier General Yount, and Mrs. Ralph I. Glasgow, wife of Brigadier General Glasgow.

A brief business meeting will take place during the afternoon. The newly written constitution and by-laws, prepared by a committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. Frank Herberth, Jr., will be presented for ratification.

Members have been requested to bring used articles of clothing to be shipped to the needy in Korea. This activity is under the chairmanship of Mrs. Robert Tripp. Mrs. Ernest A. Suttles is chairman of the tea, and assisting her are Mrs. Harley D. Brown, Mrs. E. M. Houseman, Mrs. Ernest B. Gray, Mrs. Frank C. Terrell, Mrs. John B. Grinstead, Mrs. Wentworth H. Taylor, Jr., Mrs. Lloyd Brennehan, Mrs. Marvin W. Marsh, Mrs. Edward Jones, Mrs. Percy H. Burke and Mrs. Benjamin A. Lentz.

Lt. Col. L. J. Lampke, USA-Ret., and Mrs. Lampke of Raleigh, N. C., and now of Cartersville, Ga., recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary with a dinner at the Brablen Hotel. Wedding place cards, a wedding cake forming the centerpiece, and yellow roses, gladioli and candelabra with tall tapers marked the festive occasion. Col. and Mrs. V. Whatley and their two children, Louis and Dale, from Ft. Jackson, S. C., were among the guests present.

The annual Signal Corps Fall Dance will be held on the roof of the Army-Navy Country Club on 7 Sept., sponsored by the Signal Corps officers in the Washington Area.

Expected to be present at the dance, which is a formal affair, are Maj. Gen. George I. Back, the Chief Signal Officer, and Mrs. Back. Signal officers who were unable to attend the Spring Dance will have the opportunity of meeting General and Mrs. Back. The receiving line will form at 8:00 p.m.

Invitations have been extended to retired Signal Officers in the Washington area and to General and Flag officers concerned with communications in the other Services.

The dance will begin with cocktails from 8 to 9 p.m., with dancing from 9 to midnight. Tickets may be obtained from Lt. Col. John J. S. Doyle, Room 2-E-282, the Pentagon, Washington 25, D. C., telephone Liberty 5-6700, extension 78058.

Friends of Maj. Gen. Orvil A. Anderson, USAF-Ret., and Mrs. Anderson, will be interested in learning they have recently purchased a home at 711 Magnolia St., New Smyrna Beach, Fla.

The West Point Wives' Club of 1942 met for their monthly meeting at the Allison Tea House in Alexandria on 15 Aug. After an enjoyable luncheon, a brief business meeting was held and those present remained to play bridge.

A guest at the meeting was Mrs. Howard B. Burris of San Antonio, Texas, who was visiting her daughter-in-law, Mrs. H. L. Burris.

Other members of the club who were present were: Mrs. J. R. Finney, Mrs. R. C. Miles, Mrs. E. A. Rickman, Mrs. J. D. Snow, Mrs. R. J. White, Mrs. C. M. Mizell, Mrs. E. A. Martell, Mrs. R. H. Offley, Jr., Mrs. J. J. Schmidt, Mrs. H. C. Shelton, Mrs. C. H. Garvin, Mrs. M. E. Gates, Mrs. G. D. Hughes, Mrs. C. R. Ladd, Mrs. E. C. Orme, Mrs. L. W. Vogel, Mrs. H. W. Urrutia, Mrs. R. P. Bonasso, and Mrs. W. D. Snow. Hostesses for the luncheon were: Mrs. K. F. Hanst and Mrs. P. A. Wyman.

Miss Ann Willis Cates, daughter of Marine Commandant General Clifton B. Cates, was named this week as queen of the President's Cup Regatta to be held in Washington, D. C. on the week-ends of 15-16 and 22-23 September.

Among the six maids of honor are three other Navy and Marine Corps juniors. They are, Miss Carol Cunningham, daughter of Mrs. James J. Cunningham and the late Commander Cunningham; Miss Sally Colclough, daughter of the former Navy Judge Advocate General and Mrs. Oswald S. Colclough; and Maureen Erskine, daughter of Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Graves B. Erskine, USMC.

Mrs. Arthur L. Hill is returning to her home in Los Angeles this week, after an extended visit with her daughter and two granddaughters in Washington. Mrs. Hill is the mother of Mrs. William N. Gillmore, of 3806 49th St., N. W., Washington, wife of Brigadier General Gillmore, now commanding the Artillery of the IX Corps in Korea. Departing also for the west on 12 Sept., will be General and Mrs. Gillmore's daughters, the Misses Frances and Betty Gillmore, the former to start her junior year at the University of Oregon; and the latter, her freshman work there, after attending summer school at St. Albans, Washington.

When you move, notify the Army Navy Air Force Journal of your change of address so you will not miss any issues.

Weddings and Engagements

REAR Adm. and Mrs. Victor Cameron Barringer, Jr., USN-Ret., announce the engagement of their daughter, Rosalie Janson, to 2d Lt. Thomas Van Allen Wornham, USMC, son of Col. and Mrs. Thomas Andrews Wornham, USMC.

Miss Barringer attended The Sidwell Friends School and Mount Vernon Seminary, and was graduated from Sweet Briar College with the class of 1951.

Lieutenant Wornham is a graduate of the Virginia Military Institute, and is at present stationed at Quantico, Va. He is a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity.

The wedding will take place in December.

Mrs. Andrew Daniel Hopping is announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Mary Jane, to Lt. Jack Thomas Edmund, USAF. Miss Hopping is the daughter of the late Brig. Gen. Andrew Daniel Hopping, USA. She attended the International College of the Sacred Heart, Tokyo, Japan, and is a graduate of the Academy of the Sacred Heart, Washington, D. C.

Lieutenant Edmund is the son of Mrs. Stephen Paxson Darlington of Arlington, Va., and Mount Plymouth, Fla. He attended The Citadel and the Law School of the University of South Carolina where he was a senior when recalled to active duty. He is a member of the South Carolina National Guard Squadron now on active duty at Lawson Air Force Base, Ft. Benning, Ga.

The wedding is planned for today, 25 Aug., at the Post Chapel, Fort Myer, Va.

Dr. and Mrs. LaRue Croll of Waverly, N. Y., announce the engagement of their daughter, Roberta, to Capt. John Kenneth Paden, Jr., USA, son of Maj. and Mrs. John Kenneth Paden of Ft. Sill, Okla.

Miss Croll is a graduate of the Waverly High School, Edgewood Park College at Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., and the Berkley School, New York City. Captain Paden graduated from the Los Angeles High School, attended the University of California and was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1946. He is now on duty at The Artillery Center at Ft. Sill.

The wedding is planned to take place at Waverly on 13 Oct.

On 18 Aug. at St. James Episcopal Church in Birmingham, Mich., Miss Virginia Reinhart, daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Stanley E. Reinhart, USA-Ret., Birmingham, became the bride of Mr. Lawrence Hitchcock Pomeroy, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence H. Pomeroy, also of Birmingham.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white nylon pointe d'esprit with long sleeves, tight bodice, and seed pearl trim, and a fingertip veil of illusion.

The matron of honor was Mrs. James E. Bryant, cousin of the bride, of Detroit, and the bridesmaids were Mrs. John R. Pomeroy, II, Misses Sue Pomeroy, Peggy Gould, and Sue Talbot.

Serving as best man for his brother was Mr. John R. Pomeroy, II, of Birmingham. The ushers were Robert A. King, John S. Kennedy, Jr., Mr. John N. Winters, Mr. William P. Curley, and William H. Saffell.

Mrs. Pomeroy, Jr., attended Vassar college, and her husband is an alumnus of Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. After a wedding trip to Northern Michigan they will reside in Bloomfield Hills, Mich.

Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth G. Clark, of Washington, D. C., announce the engagement of their daughter, Jane Ida, to Lt. Robert Allan Claybrook, USAF, son of Mrs. John H. Claybrook of Washington, and the late Colonel Claybrook, USA.

Miss Clark received her Bachelor of Arts degree from Cornell University. She is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority and the Cornell Women's Club of Washington.

Lieutenant Claybrook was graduated from Texas A. & I. College. At present, he is stationed at Goodfellow Air Force Base, San Angelo, Tex.

A December wedding is planned.

Miss Iva Jean Hurst, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Kenneth M. Hurst of Ft. Lee, Va., became the bride of Lt. James Farrell Hyatt, son of Mrs. J. R. Coffman, Everett, Wash., and Lt. Col. Farrell P. Hyatt, Ft. Eustis, Va., on 11 Aug. The ceremony was performed by Chaplain John A. Olschewski at the Post Chapel, Ft. Lee.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white nylon net over satin. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a bonnet of lace and orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white gladioli.

Miss Marguerite Smith of Richmond, Va., roommate of the bride at Longwood College, was maid of honor. Lt. Col. Farrell P. Hyatt served as best man for his son. The ushers, who formed an arch of swords, were Capt. J. C. Clayton, Capt. Victor Blair, Capt. William Fichter, Capt. Elvin Heisey, Lt. Lawrence Puckett, and Lt. Richard Ward. Lieutenants Puckett and Ward were classmates of the groom at Fort Riley, Kans.

Following a reception at the Ft. Lee Officers' Club, the bridal couple left for Seattle, where Lieutenant Hyatt will embark for duty in the Far East. The new Mrs. Hyatt plans to resume her study at Longwood College this Fall.

White gladioli, ferns and cathedral tapers provided the background at an afternoon ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Anne Estelle Higgins and Mr. Daniel William Borger, which took place at the Base Chapel, Langley Air Force Base, Va., 18 Aug. The bride is the daughter of Col. Charles William Higgins, USA, and Mrs. Higgins of Fairfax, Va., and Mr. Borger is the son of Mrs. Joseph Borger of Cincinnati, and the late Mr. Borger.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a nylon net and Chantilly lace gown over white taffeta, fashioned with a sweeping skirt and train. Her veil of illusion and Chantilly lace was fingertip length, and she carried a bridal bouquet of stephanotis and white orchids.

Miss Gazelle Moore, a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor, and the two other attendants were Mrs. Kenneth Eiler of Cincinnati, and Miss Margaret Goode of Richmond, Va. Mr. Wilbur F. Wolfer, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, served as best man, and the ushers were the Messrs. Charles W. Higgins, Jr., and I. Leake Wornom, Jr.

After a southern wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Borger will be at home in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Borger attended Westhampton College and the University of Cincinnati, and Mr. Borger is presently attending the School of Gemology in Washington.

Fort McPherson's old ivy covered chapel was the scene of the wedding 11 Aug.

Weddings and Engagements

of 1st Lt. Jane Wade, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Wade, of Black Mountain, to 1st Lt. Harry B. Au, of Rossville, Ga.

The beautiful bride is a member of the Army Nurse Corps, and is assigned to duty in the U. S. Army Hospital at McPherson while Lieutenant Au is the hospital's Mess Officer.

A graduate of the Asheville High School, the bride received her nurse training at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte. During World War II, she saw nearly four years of service in the Army Nurse Corps, and only recently was ordered back into the active military service.

Lieutenant Au, a graduate of the University of Chattanooga, saw service in the China, Burma, India Theatre during World War II.

The bride was attired in an ankle length white Swiss organdy, with organdy bonnet and a short veil of illusion. She carried a nosegay of vanity fair roses. Her only attendant, Capt. Elizabeth Smith, wore a pink net ankle length dress, and carried a nosegay of sweetheart roses.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Chaplain (Maj.) R. W. Jungfer. Following a reception, held in the Nurses' Quarters, the bridal couple left for New Orleans. Upon their return they will make their home at 825 N. Main street, College Park, Ga.

It has just been revealed that on 9 Sept. 1950, at the Church of the Redeemer, Chicago, Miss Roberta Howard, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Robert A. Howard, Jr., of Alexandria, Va., became the bride of Mr. Lawrence R. Franks, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Robert B. Franks of Chicago.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. F. William Lichfield. The bride was attended by a sorority sister, Miss Mary Lou Roth of Glenview, Ill., and Mr. Fred Krueger of Chicago served as best man for Mr. Franks.

The bride attended American University, Washington, where she was a member of the Alpha Chi Omega sorority. Later, she was graduated from the Katharine Gibbs School, Chicago. Mr. Franks attended Wright Junior College, Chicago, and was graduated from the Bradley College, Peoria, Ill., last June, where he was president of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity. Mr. Franks has now gone to Ft. Riley, Kans., where Mrs. Franks will join him after the preliminary training period.

Another announcement of interest to the friends of Colonel and Mrs. Howard, is that of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Janice Young Howard, who was married 14 Aug. at the First Methodist Church at Ardmore, Okla., to Cpl. James Cullen Johnson, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Cullen Johnson of Oklahoma City.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white organdy with eyelet inserts in the skirt and a tightly fitted bodice designed with a high neckline. She wore a small lace hat with a veil and carried a Prayer Book bound in satin, which her father had brought her from China, topped with white carnations.

The bride's maid of honor was her younger sister, Patricia Anne, and Mr. Cullen Johnson was his son's best man.

Following the ceremony, a small reception was held at the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Howard.

Mrs. Johnson attended the University of Chicago, where she was a member of the Mortar Board, and she, like her sister, later graduated from the Katharine Gibbs School in Chicago. Corporal Johnson attended American University until he was called to the service in April with the D. C. National Guard.

Following a brief wedding trip, the bridegroom will return to his station, and Mrs. Johnson, too, will remain with her mother in Alexandria, while Colonel Howard is on duty on Formosa.

Miss Elinor Young, daughter of Col. Ellsworth Young, USA-Ret., and Mrs. Young, was united in marriage with Capt. Robert Howard Mosebar, MSC, USA, on 18 Aug. at the Visitation Church, Kansas City, Mo.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory Chantilly lace fashioned with an off the shoulder yoke edged with a band of sheered tulle, cap sleeves and fitted bodice. The voluminous skirt which was worn over hoops was scalloped at the hemline to reveal a dust ruffle of matching nylon tulle. Her double tier veil of illusion was held in place with a brimmed half-hat of matching Chantilly lace, and she carried a lovely spray of Eucharist and Stephanotis blossoms.

Mrs. Chester Lawrence Dillon, sister of the bride was the matron of honor. Mr. Chester Lawrence attended the groom as best man, and Mr. Thomas F. Wilson, Mr. Frederic C. Wilson, and Mr. Phillip McLean, cousins of the bride, ushered.

A breakfast at the Wishbone followed the ceremony and there was a reception at the home of Colonel and Mrs. Young at five o'clock in the afternoon.

Miss Young recently returned from two years in the Far East where she was employed by the Department of the Army. She attended Western College for Women in Oxford, Ohio and Pembroke College of Brown University, Providence, Rhode Island.

Captain Mosebar is assigned to Sixth Army Headquarters at the Presidio of San Francisco. He served two years in the Far East which included duty with a mobile surgical hospital in Korea. During World War II he was in active combat duty in the Pacific. He attended Washington State College and belongs to Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

After a wedding trip in Colorado, Captain and Mrs. Mosebar will be at home at 106 Parnassus, San Francisco, Calif.

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. George B. Barth, Indiantown Gap, Pa., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Georgia Bittman Barth, to Sgt. John D. Perry, 120th Medical Battalion, 45th Division, Camp Chitose, Japan.

Miss Barth is at present stationed at Camp Chitose, Japan, with the Army Library Service. She is a graduate of the French Convent, Notre Dame de Sion, at Kansas City, Missouri, and Middlebury College, Middlebury, Vermont.

Sergeant Perry is the son of Col. and Mrs. Daniel L. Perry, retired, Tulsa, Okla., and is a graduate of Oklahoma Military Academy.

The wedding is scheduled to be held at Camp Chitose on Sunday, 2 Sept.

Rear Adm. Clyde W. Brunson, MC, USN, and Mrs. Brunson of Seattle, Wash., and Key West, Fla., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Barbara Louise Brunson, to Lt. (jg) M. Bruce Sullivan, Jr., MC, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Bruce Sullivan of Ft. Worth, Tex.

Miss Brunson attended Punahou School, Honolulu, TH, before graduating from Dana Hall at Wellesley, Mass. She then attended Sweet Briar College and received her Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Texas. She is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. Lieutenant Sullivan, who is now on sea duty in the Pacific, did his undergraduate work at the University of Texas and received his medical degree from Tulane University Medical School. He is a member of the Nu Sigma Nu medical fraternity.

The wedding is planned for late fall in Seattle.

Lt. Christensen Decorated

The Silver Star for gallantry in action in Korea was awarded posthumously to 2d Lt. Frank P. Christensen, Jr., at a formal retreat ceremony on Governors Island, 23 Aug. Lt. Col. Frank P. Christensen, sr., father of Lieutenant Christensen, received the decoration from Lt. Gen. Willis D. Crittenden, USA, First Army Commander.

Lieutenant Christensen, USMA '50, volunteered for service in Korea soon after completing airborne training at Ft. Benning, Ga., and was assigned to Company F, 7th Infantry Regiment, 3d Infantry Division. He was with this unit when he met his death.

1st Cavalry's Horses

With the 1st Cavalry Division, U. S. Army in Korea — "Where are your horses?" — a question which has long haunted the 1st Cavalry Division — has been answered at last.

Sgt. Dallas C. Acker of the 8th Cavalry Regiment thinks he has discovered what happened to the famous steeds of Custer's time. The sergeant discovered a pack of infantry horses working for the 27th "Wolfhound" Regiment of the 25th Infantry Division in Korea.

"It would be a heck of a switch," drawled the trooper, "if the 1st Cavalry ever started using wolfhounds."

Bendix Trophy Record

A new record in the Bendix Trophy Race was set last week-end by Col. Keith K. Compton, during the National Air Races at Detroit. Flying an F-86 Sabre Jet, Colonel Compton covered the 1,919.5-mile course in three hours and 27 minutes, for a speed record of 556.37 miles an hour.

The previous record in the Bendix event was made in 1949 by Maj. Vernon A. Ford, with a record of 529 miles an hour.

A second Air Force officer, Col. Fred J. Ascani, broke all existing world records for a close course, 62-miles-plus distance, in a fully-armed F86E Sabre jet fighter plane during the Thompson Trophy event. In a trial run he covered the course at a speed of 635.41 miles per hour, and later established the new record of 628.696.

1st Lt. William D. Baisley won the Allison Jet race to Indianapolis and return, an event in which Lt. Col. John W. Lafko, Korean war veteran, made a crash landing.

In another event, four Air Force F-86s streaked over a 237-mile course from Chicago to Ft. Wayne, Ind., in 20 minutes 55.2 seconds, for a speed of 672.189 miles an hour.

Alaskan Inspection Trip

Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, Jr., and General J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, visited Ottawa, Canada, on 21-22 Aug. at the invitation of the Honorable Brooke Claxton, Minister of National Defense for Canada.

The Ottawa visit was made during a stopover en route from Washington to an inspection trip in Alaska. A brief visit to Fort Churchill, Canada, was also made.

Secretary Pace and General Collins are expected to return to Washington on 31 August.

What every Air Force wife should know...

Yes, life in the Air Force is different! Entertaining, changing stations, fulfilling social obligations — these and countless other everyday Post activities can harass the new Air Force wife.

POSTS AND STATIONS

■ FT. SAM HOUSTON, TEX. Fourth Army Headquarters celebrated the 19th anniversary of the organization of the command on 15 Aug. The Enlisted Men's Club held open house party Wednesday afternoon and evening, while the Fourth Army Officers' Mess observed the anniversary Saturday night with a formal dinner-dance.

Lt. Gen. LeRoy Lutes, the present commanding general of the five-state area, came to Fourth Army headquarters 15 Oct. 1949.

■ FT. LEE, VA. Sixty-eight graduates of the first Parachute, Packing and Maintenance, Aerial Delivery Course at Ft. Lee's Quartermaster School, heard an address by Maj. Gen. L. L. Lemnitzer, commanding general of the 11th Airborne Division, Camp Campbell, Ky., on 11 Aug.

The general was introduced by Brig. Gen. A. T. McNamara, acting post commander, and during his talk stressed the importance of seeking perfection in rigging, repairing, and packing parachutes, quoting from the riggers' pledge to outline his point.

Lt. Col. A. E. Dodge, OIC of the course, congratulated the students on successfully completing the course. Honor graduates of the course were Cpl. Glenn G. Whitehead, and Pfc. Darwyn D. Adkins. They were presented certificates of achievement by General Lemnitzer.

■ FT. WORTH, TEX. Col. Donald S. Dundas, who has been serving as staff judge advocate in the Eighth Air Force headquarters at Carswell AFB, has left for a similar assignment with the Fifteenth Air Force at March AFB, Calif. Colonel Dundas will be succeeded shortly by Lt. Col. Harold J. Sullivan, who will come from Washington, D. C.

Lt. Col. Wilbur B. Beezley, who had served as headquarters commandant and commanding officer of the headquarters squadron of the Eighth Air Force since July 1960, departed 13 Aug. for a new assignment at Walker AFB, N. Mex. Maj. Ralph N. DeVore, who had served as maintenance officer and deputy commandant at the headquarters since his arrival in November 1949, will fill Colonel Beezley's vacancy.

■ PEPPERELL AFB, NEWFOUNDLAND. M/Sgt. and Mrs. Al Solmes celebrated their sixth wedding anniversary in their quarters at Pepperell AFB on the evening of 1 Aug. Guests were M/Sgt. and Mrs. Carroll (Jack) Leahy, S/Sgt. and Mrs. Eddie P. Light, Dr. and Mrs. Horace Rosenberg from St. John's (Nfld.), T/Sgt. and Mrs. Robert E. Moore, T/Sgt. and Mrs. Jack R. Talbot, T/Sgt. and Mrs. Pat Williams, M/Sgt. Ralph N. Farrar and Neil Byrne, T/Sgt. and Mrs. Robert E. Cartater. All are with the Northeast Air Command.

Mrs. Solmes is the former Ann Skrobak, daughter of Mr. Kyril Skrobak, Clifford, Penn., and the sergeant is the son of Mrs. Joseph Halliday of Long Beach, Calif. The couple were married in the "Country Church of Hollywood," near Hollywood and Vine (Los Angeles), the evening's discussion revealed.

■ GRIFFISS AFB, N. Y. A farewell tea, sponsored by the Officers' Wives' Club, was held Tuesday 14 Aug. at the Officers' Club, in honor of Mrs. Paul E. Burrows, wife of the retiring commanding officer of the base. Receiving with Mrs. Burrows were Mrs. Joe A. Bennett, president of the Ladies' Club, Mrs. Tom C. Rives, Mrs. Alvin L. Pachynski, wife of the commanding officer of the Rome Air Development Center, and Mrs. Clyde L. Wade, vice-president of the organization.

Approximately 200 people attended. The club was decorated with palms and flowers, and a musical interlude of selections for harp and voice was presented by Mrs. Lawrence Bogard and Mrs. James Borders.

A farewell gift was presented to Mrs. Burrows by Mrs. Bennett on behalf of the club members. Ladies who poured at the tea included: Mrs. Robert C. Sexton, Mrs. F. E. Ludgate, wife of the British liaison officer, Mrs. Clayton L. Peterson, and Mrs. Pachynski.

■ FT. JACKSON, S. C. Maj. Gen. Harry J. Collins, post and Eighth Division Commander, has announced a shift of on-post assignments involving two top officers.

Col. Phillip C. Clayton, who has been serving as coordinator of post and training activities, was named commanding officer of the Specialist Training Regiment, Eighth Infantry Division, replacing Col. Kenneth M. Barager who has been appointed as Post Special Services Officer.

■ CAMP OSAKA, JAPAN. Camp Osaka's commanding officer, Col. William J. Moroney, left Japan for the United States 22 Aug. aboard the USS Gen. A. E. Anderson. He is succeeded by Col. Antulio Segarra, present chief of the G-4 section, Headquarters Southwest Command.

■ LIMESTONE AFB, ME. Newly recalled Reserve officers, all from the New England area, held a "bury the hatchet" party at the Officers' Club here recently. Guests for the occasion were fellow officers from the South and Southwest. Literature and photos from New England and Texas Chambers of Commerce formed the decoration motif and a "yankee style" dinner was served. Highlight of the dinner menu was "baked beans and brown bread." The beans were served in individual beanpots which were given to the guests as souvenirs.

■ KELLY AFB, TEX. The Officers' Wives' Club began its new year 1 Aug. with Mrs. Theodore W. Tucker presiding as president. Other new officers are: Mrs. Thomas D. Wood, first vice president; Mrs. Jasper N. Bell, second vice president; Mrs. Gust J. Yandala, secretary; and Mrs. Hardie M. Dunn, treasurer.

Activities for the month of August included a luncheon, a coffee, a bridge luncheon and a golf tournament. The agenda for the coming year has plans for extensive Red Cross work and contributions in time and money to specified welfare organizations.

■ WM. BEAUMONT ARMY HOSPITAL. Lt. Col. John R. Kellett, RAMC, has been assigned to William Beaumont Army Hospital under the plan whereby each year medical officers from the British and U. S. Armies are exchanged for a year's duty with the other service.

Colonel Kellett has been an eye specialist during his 16 years with the British forces, and will continue his specialty in this country, expecting in addition to his work at William Beaumont to attend clinics and conferences on the subject in other hospitals and cities. He holds an M.B. degree from Trinity College, Dublin, and the Diploma of Ophthalmology of London.

■ ANNAPOLIS, MD. Capt. and Mrs. Fred W. Walton entertained at their quarters at the U. S. Naval Engineering Experiment Station for Mrs. Walton's brother, Mr. Stewart L. Abercrombie and wife; and sister, Mrs. Frances Hazen from Camarillo, Calif.; and Professor and Mrs. William Brauwel of Purdue, also a sister of Mrs. Walton.

The guest list included a large number of friends from Washington and Annapolis, formerly on duty in Hawaii when the Abercrombies visited their sister there.

Vice Adm. and Mrs. Harry W. Hill returned last Wednesday after two weeks' vacation, part of which was spent in Portland, Me., with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Drake.

■ MCCHORD AFB, WASH. Supervision of the Pacific airlift out of this base passed to Col. Marshall A. Elkins, 11 Aug., as he assumed command of the 1705th Air Transport Wing from Col. Richard F. Bromiley. Colonel Bromiley, commander of the wing since 5 Sept. 1950 is going to Bermuda as commanding officer of Kindley AFB.

Under Colonel Bromiley's command the wing earned fame for the volume of its operations and for its safety record in the Pacific airlift. Nearly 1,000 military aircraft have departed McChord for the Far East in the first year of operations. They have flown more than 11½ million miles to and from the Orient, yet those military planes have not incurred one loss of life nor have they failed to deliver safely one piece of cargo or mail.

■ ABERDEEN PROVING GROUND, MD. Aberdeen Proving Ground will furnish the major part of the Army exhibit at the Maryland State Fair at Timonium, Md., 29 Aug. to 8 Sept.

The Ordnance Museum and The Ordnance School will send seven pieces of equipment to the exhibit, including captured enemy equipment from the Korean battlefields. The museum's contribution will include a North Korean self-propelled 75 mm. gun; another North Korean 75 mm. field piece; a 37 mm. anti-aircraft field piece (North Korean); and a Russian jeep. Supplied by the Ordnance School will be an M-26 General Pershing medium tank, a 90 mm. gun with fire control equipment, and a 105 mm. howitzer. Service personnel in uniform will be admitted free to the fair.

■ RANDOLPH AFB, TEX. Afternoon music and candlelit, floral decorated tables set the scene for the farewell tea held 15 Aug. honoring Randolph's former first lady, Mrs. Carl B. McDaniel, prior to her departure to join Brigadier General McDaniel at Scott AFB, Ill. Special guest was Mrs. John H. Davies, wife of Colonel Davies, newly appointed commanding officer of Randolph.

Hostesses at the lovely affair, given by the Officers' Wives' Club, were Mrs. David Thomas, Mrs. Herbert Fennell, and Mrs. Calvin E. Peeler. Greeting guests in the receiving line were Mrs. James R. Sheffield, president of the OW Club; Mrs. McDaniel; Mrs. O. O. Benson; Mrs. Richard N. Ellis, and Mrs. L. F. Downing.

Tuesday, approximately 30 wives of non-commissioned officers joined in complimenting Mrs. McDaniel during a coffee hour from 10 to 11 a.m. at the NCO Club. The occasion marked the first farewell courtesy for an honorary president inasmuch as Mrs. McDaniel was the first base commander's wife to become affiliated with the NCO Women's Club. The club presented Mrs. McDaniel with a ceramic dish topped with a cover designed in the form of a flower. Mrs. E. H. Johnson, president, made the presentation. Mrs. M. R. Zaenger and Mrs. R. F. Peake poured for the guests.

■ SELFREDGE AFB, MICH. Members of the Officers' Wives' Club honored Mrs. James R. Gunn, Jr., last Friday with a farewell tea. Mrs. Gunn will accompany her husband, base commander here for the last two years, to Washington soon. Colonel Gunn will begin a lengthy seminar there at the Armed Forces Industrial War College. In addition to many other gifts, Mrs. Gunn was the recipient of a beautiful pair of matched silver bowls.

Serving as hostesses were Meses. Edwin L. Tucker, Cecil Henry, Francis R. Royal, Walter Urbach, Barton Russell, Graeme S. Bond, Nathan B. Hays, and William S. Simpson.

■ RYCOM, OKINAWA. Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler, Commanding General of the Ryukyu Command and Deputy Governor of the U. S. Civil Administration of the Ryukyu Islands, returned to Okinawa 7 Aug. aboard a 20th Air Force B-17 staff plane.

The general, accompanied by his wife, was met at Kadena Air Base by Maj. Gen. Ralph S. Stearley, Commanding General, 20th Air Force, Brig. Gen. Harry B. Sherman, Deputy Commanding General, Ryukyu Command, Brig. Gen. James Lewis, Ryukyu Command Civil Administrator and members of their staffs.

General Beightler, accompanied by Mrs. Beightler, departed from Okinawa 10 May for hospital treatment at the Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D. C. He told the welcoming party at the air field, "I feel 10 years younger."

Accompanying the general on the plane was Capt. Robert J. Cook, former aide to General Beightler who has been in Korea since February of this year. Also aboard the aircraft was Dr. Howard B. Snyder, civilian consultant to the Surgeon's Office, Washington, D. C., who will confer with local medical authorities.

■ BUJIMA-MENAI TRAINING AREA, JAPAN. Movement of the 160th Regimental Combat Team to this maneuver ground on the slopes of Japan's most remarkable landmark has been completed, Maj. Gen. Daniel H. Hudelson, commander of the 40th Infantry Division, has announced. The team, which was called back to active duty last September from Los Angeles, Maywood, Santa Monica, and Culver City, is commanded by Lt. Col. Warren E. Benoit, Los Angeles.

The bulk of the combat team is represented by Los Angeles' own 160th Infantry Regiment and the 143d Field Artillery Battalion. The artillery commander is Maj. D. J. Valentine, Culver City. Shift of the organization from Camp Haugen, near Hachinohe on Northern Honshu, was accomplished by sea, rail, and truck. Most of the RCT headed for Fuji on completion of a routine amphibious landing exercise on Chigasaki Beach near Yokohama.

■ FT. MONMOUTH, N. J. Col. and Mrs. Holmes G. Paulin were honored at a farewell cocktail and buffet supper Thursday evening at Gibbs Hall. Over 200 officers and other friends and associates and their ladies attended, including: Brig. Gen. Harry Reichelderfer, commanding general, Mrs. Harry Reichelderfer, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. J. O. Mauborgne, and Maj. Gen. and Mrs. G. L. Van Deusen.

The Colonel, who has been Ft. Monmouth Deputy Post Commander since 1948, will leave shortly for his new assignment as Professor of Military Science and Tactics at the University of Massachusetts. Review of troops in the Colonel's honor was held last Saturday.

■ MURPHY ARMY HOSPITAL, MASS. With wives of the Administrative Officers as sponsors, the officers' wives held their monthly luncheon on 15 Aug. in the recently redecorated Officers' Club. Hostesses were Mrs. Halley Campbell, wife of Lt. Col. Angus L. Campbell, Inspector General; Mrs. Margaret Nicolary, wife of Lt. Col. Carl W. Nicolary, Management Officer; and Mrs. Ann Mastrolia, wife of Maj. Anthony C. Mastrolia, Personnel Officer.

Forty-five wives and guests present made this the largest luncheon conducted since the reactivation of the hospital. Highlighting the luncheon was a talk by Mrs. Muriel Stapleton, wife of Col. James B. Stapleton, Commanding Officer. In which she stressed the unity of cooperation in all club undertakings sponsored by the wives, reports Mrs. George W. Gelas, entertainment chairman.

■ FT. BROOKE, P. R. During his recent visit to Puerto Rico, National American Legion Commander Erle Cocke, Jr., visited Rodriguez Army Hospital at Ft. Brooke where he talked to many Puerto Rican patients who have been returned for hospitalization from Korea. Commander Cocke was accompanied by Antilles Chief of Staff Col. Morton E. Towne, and Col. H. W. Daine, Commanding Officer of Rodriguez. The National Commander expressed his satisfaction with the "obviously excellent medical care the soldiers are receiving."

■ FT. KNOX, KY. Maj. Gen. I. D. White, new commanding general of The Armored Center, and Mrs. White, held a reception Friday evening at their home for senior commanders, heads of general and special staffs and members of their sections of field grade, regimental and separate battalion commanders, and senior officers of Godman AFB.

In the reception line to welcome guests were General and Mrs. White, Brig. Gen. Arthur R. Walk, 3d Armored Division commander, and Mrs. Walk, and Brig. Gen. John C. Macdonald, Ft. Knox chief of staff, and Mrs. Macdonald.

Col. William H. Wood has arrived here from the European Command and assumed command as director of the Armor Officer Candidate School which will open late in September. Col. Thomas J. Rodgers, who was acting director until the arrival of Colonel Wood, is now deputy director of the Armor OCS.

■ FT. MEADE, MD. Brig. Gen. Louis H. Renfrow, Deputy Director, Selective Service System, spoke to men of the 310th Logistical Command here on the manpower problems facing the nation. The 310th is a District of Columbia reserve unit which finished two weeks' summer training here 19 Aug.

Four members of the 391st M. P. Battalion here safely returned the German Heese crown jewels to Germany last week. Headed by Capt. Raymond J. O'Donnell, the group included Sfc. Andrea Duchone and Cpls. James E. Lamb and James W. Morrison.

■ SFPE, FT. MASON, CALIF. Mrs. R. H. Filmore assumed the Chairmanship of the SFPE Ladies' Auxiliary, and Mrs. James Brewer was elected Vice Chairman, at a recent meeting held at the SFPE Officers' Mess. Others who will serve for the next three months are: Mrs. T. E. Robinson, Secretary; Mrs. Thomas C. Marmon, Vice Secretary; Mrs. D. C. Dickinson, Treasurer; Mrs. Randolph Reed, Vice Treasurer; Mrs. Philip A. MacDonald, Publicity; Mrs. Paul Schaefer, Vice Publicity; Mrs. Samuel Thompson, Mrs. M. H. Marcus, and Mrs. John Oben will serve on the Advisory Board.

New Air Reserve Program

V Committee, which advises the Secretary on Reserve matters.

Opinions were sought from many Reservists, some of them on active duty and others in inactive status.

Then, on 4 June, after a meeting with the Council of Deputy Chiefs of Staff, a committee was formed under the chairmanship of Brig. Gen. Robert J. Smith, USAFR, noted airlines executive, to work out a long-range program.

The Smith Committee's report declares that "the organization, administration, training and supply of the Air Reserve Forces . . . shall be completely integrated with the organization, administration, training and supply of the regular establishment under the Secretary of the Air Force and the Chief of Staff, and the Secretary of the Air Force and the Chief of Staff shall hold the same relation and responsibility to the Reserve Forces as they do to the active establishment."

This, said Mr. Zuckert, is "now an order! . . . and a big one."

The Air Force official then told of these highlights of the new program:

"For the first time we have a plan that is tied directly to the very real, crucial needs of the Air Force in the years to come—and that has been worked out, what's more, in terms of the actual ability of the Air Force to support the sort of program envisioned in the plan. This plan contemplates the best ways in which a Reserve organization can be utilized, and works out its future. I believe, accordingly, Reservists will especially like those provisions of the plan which insist that they receive exactly the same treatment and support as Regulars in times of peace as well as in times of war."

"There's another thing about this plan that encourages me. Because it is so closely geared to the future needs of Air Staff and the Major Commands—especially in its emphasis on the necessity for adequate supporting organizations—Air Staff and the Major Commands have every reason, in their own interests, to give the fullest possible assistance and encouragement to every last part of the plan."

"For instance, when the Commanding General of the Tactical Air Command reviews his operations program for his combat units, he will be charged with automatic responsibility for providing training for that same program to the Reserve units earmarked for his command after D-day. This responsibility is exercised through, and under the supervision of Continental Air Command but the accountability rests squarely on the shoulders of the Tactical Air commander.

"In other words, we have a plan that we are sure we can make work—and one that the whole Air Force has a good, sound incentive to support.

"But it is more than this—it is a plan which shows every promise of eliminating many of the troubles which have plagued the Reservist and the Reserve Program in the past.

"First of all, because it is a stable, long-range plan, it gives the Reservist a clearly mapped-out future on which he can rely, on which he can base his own plans, and through which he can show his family and especially his employer exactly where he will stand Reserve-wise for years to come in the event of varying degrees of national emergency. The plan is based directly on the Department of Defense concept of the Ready, Stand-by, and Retired Reserves, of which you doubtless have already heard, and because it is correlated both in terms of predetermined personnel needs and of the probable input from UMT&S sources, the plan provides for a much surer knowledge on the part of the Reservist as to where he fits into the Reserve organization and what need the Air Force has for his services.

"The plan also gives real meaning to Reserve training activity. At the request of Continental Air Command, Training Command will be charged with providing up-to-date, intensive correspondence courses, conducting two-week blitz training tours in accordance with all regular training practices, and arranging for the use by Reservists of civilian contract training facilities, just as is done in the regular Training Command program.

"Older Reservists, who have little to gain by taking training courses, will act as instructors in their various specialties.

"What is even more important, this plan calls for the resumption of scheduled reserve flying training by Fiscal Year 1953. Through special procurement and leases on major commands, sufficient aircraft—in as many instances as possible they will be first-line planes—will be acquired to provide for practicable, useful concentrated flying training. Through the increased use of Air Force and Air National Guard facilities, plus the sharing of bases with other services, a geographical distribution has been developed to bring flying training within easy reach of as many rated Reservists as possible. These will be in 95 metropolitan areas.

"I want to stress the point that under the provisions of this plan, all training will be conducted on a realistic individual proficiency basis, and geared to the best possible extent to the Reservist's civilian occupation. We are going to do away with this business of killing time during training periods by having instructors read long, dreary stretches from out-of-date, irrelevant field manuals—instruction will be planned and conducted in terms of specific skills needed by the Air Force and the specific capabilities of the Reservist.

"I have an illustration of the realism and earnestness of this wedding of the Air Force and its Reserves. The Air Force will start immediately to seek approval for a program for building special ground training centers in areas of potential Reserve population. These special buildings will have classrooms, projection booths, and workshops for training in all those skills the Air Force needs. We plan to build more than one hundred of such centers. These centers will not, obviously, spring up overnight, but they will be built once we get the approval of Congress—and with all possible speed.

"No plan, however excellent in form and intent, is going to work without the proper personnel to carry it out and without a good framework of organization in which these competent people can work. This new plan recognizes as an urgent necessity the selection of the highest calibre of officers and other personnel for duty on the Reserve Forces Program, and provides for direct supervision and control from the Secretary's office through the Chief of Staff to Continental Air Command, which is directly charged with all field responsibility. The plan tentatively calls for the creation of an adequate number of district headquarters to carry the supervision and control to the local level.

"To tighten up the administration and even further, the plan envisages that master files on every Reservist will eventually be kept up at ConAC headquarters, instead of being scattered all over the country the way they are now, while field files on every Reservist will be maintained at district headquarters, enabling the Reservist to keep in close and constant touch with his records. Many of you read several weeks ago the news released by the Department of Defense that we are seeking authorization for the construction of a new multi-million-dollar headquarters for ConAC centrally located at Grandview, Missouri, near Kansas City. One of the primary functions of this new installation will be the proper handling and storing of Reserve records. It is scheduled for completion in late 1953."

USAF Family Aid Program

As part of the Air Force's expanding Personnel Services, the program of aid to dependents of USAF men and women in the Washington area is being accelerated.

The stepped-up Washington program is under the supervision of the Personal Affairs section of Headquarters Command, USAF, located at Bolling Air Force Base. However, it is emphasized that this service is available to the families of all USAF personnel in the National Capital area, not merely those in Headquarters Command.

Thus, dependents of officers and airmen stationed in the Pentagon Building, at MATS and other Air Force units in or near Washington will be helped when in distress—as well as the dependents of AF personnel stationed at Command units (Bolling and Andrews AF Bases, the 1020th Special Activities Wing at South Post, Fort Myer, and the 1025th Air Base Group at Washington National Airport).

At each of the four Command stations, a Dependents' Assistance Officer has been designated to see that aid is quickly provided the needy dependent. This officer works closely with the American Red Cross, the Air Force Aid Society, and the Air Force Officers' Wives Club of Washington to put into effect the policy that the "Air Force Takes Care of Its Own."

Members of the Air Force Officers' Wives Club of Washington are participants in the humanitarian work on a volunteer basis. Among other services performed on request, Club members provide articles of clothing to those in distress, transport persons to hospitals and visit patients.

Persons wishing this type of assistance should contact the Club through the Dependents' Assistance Officer at the Headquarters Command base with which they are connected. If they are not so connected, but are stationed elsewhere in the Washington area, they should contact the Dependents' Assistance Officer at Headquarters Command itself.

MATS Colonel Shifted

Col. Carlton J. Martin, chief, civil air division, Military Air Transport Service, has been assigned to Headquarters, 1414th Air Base Group, Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, as deputy commander.

Obituaries

Mrs. Sara M. Jones

Mrs. Sara Morgan Jones, wife of Col. Walter C. Jones, USA-Ret., died at Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington, D. C., on 20 Aug.

Mrs. Jones who resided with her husband at 451 East DiLido Dr., Miami Beach, Fla., was the sister-in-law of Maj. Gen. Albert M. Jones, Director of the Army Review Board Counsel in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Jones was a volunteer Red Cross worker for 30 years and a member of the Daughters of American Revolution chapter in Newton, Mass.

Besides her husband and brother-in-law, she is survived by a son, Mr. Harwood L. Jones of Glendale, Calif.; a daughter, Mrs. Dana V. Phillips of Miami Beach, Fla.; and a sister, Mrs. Arthur Halloran of San Francisco, Calif.

Services were held on 23 August in the chapel at Ft. Myer, Va., and burial was in Arlington National Cemetery.

Col. Ernest T. Hayes, USA-Ret.

Col. Ernest T. Hayes, USA-Ret., died at Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington, D. C., on 20 Aug. at the age of 58.

Before his retirement on 31 December 1947, Colonel Hayes served as adjutant of the Army port at Bremerhaven, Germany.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Frances M. Hayes of 1479 South Fourth St., Louisville, Ky.; his son, Lt. E. T. Hayes, Jr., of Camp Carson, Colo.; a daughter, Julia, wife of Maj. D. A. Aamodt of Waco, Tex.

Services were held in Arlington National Cemetery on 22 Aug.

1st Lt. James R. McDaniel, USAF

The many friends throughout the Service of Col. and Mrs. Otto L. McDaniel of 1245 So. Oakcrest Rd., Arlington, Va., will be shocked and saddened to learn of the death of their son, 1st Lt. James Richard McDaniel, USAF.

Death came to the young pilot 2½ months before his 24th birthday, the result of a jet plane crash at Williams Air Force Base, N. M., to which he had just recently been transferred.

Lieutenant McDaniel was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in the class of 1949. On 14 Aug. 1950, he was married to Miss Shirligh Warner of Wilmington, N. C.

Besides his parents and his widow, he is survived by one brother, Capt. Robert L. McDaniel of the 11th Airborne Division, Ft. Campbell, Ky.

Comdr. William T. Faulconer, DC, USN
Comdr. William Thomas Faulconer, DC, USN, died 18 Aug., of a cerebral hemorrhage at the Naval Hospital, Bethesda, Md. At the time of his death, Dr. Faulconer was assigned to the Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point, N. C.

Born at Columbus, Ind., on 20 Nov. 1906, he attended Washington University School of Dentistry (St. Louis) from 1925-29 and received his degree of Doctor of Dental Surgery in 1929.

He was commissioned a Lieutenant (junior grade) in the Dental Corps Reserve on 8 Dec. 1941 and was assigned to the Naval Training Station, San Diego, Calif., for duty. During World War II he served in various assignments, both ashore and afloat, and transferred to the Regular Navy in November 1947.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Florence Faulconer; a son, James F. Faulconer; his mother, Mrs. Joseph Myers of Washington, Missouri and a sister, Mrs. William Deis of St. Louis, Missouri.

Funeral services were held 22 Aug., at St. Louis, followed by interment at Valhalla Cemetery.

David M. Evans

Friends of Maj. Gen. Frederick W. Evans, USAF-Ret, and Mrs. Evans will be grieved to learn that their 16-year-old son, David M. Evans, has lost a courageous 3½-year battle against cancer. He died at Fitzsimons Army Hospital, Denver, on 16 August.

David had managed to complete his junior year at the Englewood High School, Denver, before becoming bedridden, despite his having to spend more than a third of his time undergoing a series of operations. Besides keeping ahead of his class, he had also become one of the school's best chess players.

In addition to his parents, David is survived by one brother, Frederick, Jr., and one sister, Faith, both of the family address, No. 231, 23 S. Downing, Denver 9, Colo.

Services were held 18 August at the Fitzsimons Chapel and burial was at Fairmount Cemetery, Denver.

Dependent Travel to FEC

Plans to resume dependent travel to Japan were outlined in greater detail in a dispatch received this week from Headquarters, Far East Command.

In general, the announcement said, the sponsor must have at least 12 months' service remaining in the FEC before he can get approval for his dependents to travel to the Far East. In addition, he must agree to accept quarters for his family in any part of Japan, no matter how remote from his duty station.

Individual dependents, the announcement said, will not receive notification of selection to travel until after 1 Oct., as previously reported in THE JOURNAL, and "will not be able to travel to Japan before 1 Nov."

Dependents will be able to take with them only a limited amount of household goods, plus personal clothing, and no family group may bring more than two pets.

GM's Defense Program

Deliveries of defense material to the government was up 30 per cent in the second quarter of this year over the first quarter, according to General Motors Corporation quarterly report to its shareholders. The report is signed by Mr. C. E. Wilson, president, and Mr. Alfred P. Sloan, jr. chairman of the Board.

"GM's defense program gained momentum during the second quarter," the report states. "Deliveries to the Government were up 30% from the first quarter. However, the major emphasis continued to be on make-ready—getting set up for quantity output of military items not yet in the production stage."

"Second quarter Government sales, including work performed under defense engineering research and development contracts, totaled approximately $130 million. For the first six months of 1951 they totaled $230 million. Defense deliveries included for the most part either military items which the Corporation had been making for the armed services before the outbreak of hostilities in Korea or else products similar to those made by GM for civilian use."

"The major portion of the Corporation's defense assignment, however, calls for the production of items unlike those made in peacetime. To build these requires special tools and machinery and either the conversion of existing plants or the construction of new ones. Good progress was being made on contracts of this type, which were in various stages of make-ready as the quarter ended."

The report also advised the stockholders that work will begin shortly on the new General Motors Arizona Proving Ground for testing cars, trucks and buses under desert conditions and for development testing of military vehicles, including tanks built by General Motors. Attention was also called to the new radial type Diesel engine developed for submarines by the Cleveland Diesel Engine Division in cooperation with the Navy's Bureau of Ships.

Guided Missile Div.

Appointment of C. R. (Jack) Irvine as assistant division manager and chief engineer of the Convair Guided Missile Division has been announced by Division Manager Gage Irving. In San Diego he was chief engineer for missiles and fighter aircraft until appointment as assistant chief division engineer in February, 1948.

The Guided Missile Division is scheduled to transfer its activities to Pomona, Calif., some time in 1952, upon completion of a $50,000,000 Navy-Convair missile production plant now being constructed there.

Also announced was the appointment of Harold W. Pope, formerly a San Diego Division missile project engineer, as assistant chief engineer of the Guided Missile Division. Prior to joining Consolidated in October, 1940, Mr. Pope served as an Army Air Corps engineer at Dayton, Ohio.

When you move, notify the Army Navy Air Force Journal of your change of address so you will not miss any issues.

INDUSTRY * FINANCE * MARITIME

Supply Management

The Munitions Board, Department of Defense, has streamlined its supply management program by coordinating the activities of the Packaging, Inspection, and Standards Agencies under administrative control of a newly chartered single agency, carrying the name "Standards Agency," the name of one of the merged groups. The action came after the Board had received the concurrence of the Secretary of Defense.

The centralizing of administrative control is considered one of the most important advancements in the field of material standardization in the government in the past thirty years. It is contemplated that it will eliminate many administrative and jurisdictional delays and materially increase production of specifications and standards.

The move places the reconstituted Standards Agency and the existing Cataloging Agency under the control of the Director, Supply Management Agencies, William Harrigan, with Packaging and Inspection retaining their functions while losing their identities as separate agencies. Mr. Harrigan, a consulting industrial engineer, serves directly under W. J. McBrien, Vice Chairman for Supply Management.

The rechartered Standards Agency is responsible for developing a Military Standardization Program to achieve the highest degree of practical standardization of all items used by the Armed Forces including those processes and practices essential to the manufacture, packaging, packing, inspection, and acceptance.

Mr. Harrigan emphasized that the jobs of packaging and inspection have not been subordinated to standardization, but have been enhanced by being given equal recognition with the material and physical characteristics or properties of the item itself.

New Post for USNA Grad

R. E. Erbentraut, a graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy in 1939, has been appointed marine sales manager of the Sperry Gyroscope Company Division of The Sperry Corporation, Great Neck, N. Y. He is responsible for the sale of all commercial marine equipment, a field in which Sperry has pioneered for over 40 years.

Mr. Erbentraut has been assistant marine sales manager since 1942 and during the war handled Navy contracts for all marine navigational equipment.

Martin Sub-Contract

Contracts have been signed with The Glenn L. Martin Company of Baltimore, designers and manufacturers of the P5M-1 Marlin, for the Majestic Aircraft Company of Moosup, Conn., to build ailerons for the big flying boats.

Production work is scheduled to begin as soon as all necessary tools are received from the Martin Company—some have already arrived from the Baltimore plant. The first completed component is scheduled for delivery late this year.

Adm. Cochrane Honored

One of the highest honors in the field of naval architecture and marine engineering was bestowed upon Vice Adm. E. L. Cochrane, USN-Ret., Chairman of the Federal Maritime Board and head of the Maritime Administration, U. S. Department of Commerce, when he was presented in London with diplomas of honorary membership of the Institution of Naval Architects and of the Institute of Marine Engineers.

The presentation was made at the recent International conference of the two organizations. Last recipients of the high honors were The Honorable Winston Churchill and King Frederik of Denmark.

Before departing for London, Admiral Cochrane had received, in a ceremony at Medford, Mass., the honorary degree of Doctor of Science from Tufts College in recognition of his naval and maritime services to the nation.

The presentations in London marked the recognition by the two United Kingdom societies of the outstanding position Admiral Cochrane holds in the fields of naval design and construction through his present assignment as head of the two new Government agencies dealing with the United States Merchant Marine, and his service in naval construction during World War II as Chief of the Bureau of Ships of the U. S. Navy, in addition to his position as head of the Department of Naval Architecture and Marine Engineering at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, from which he is at present on leave of absence.

RCA Manual on UHF

The latest booklet in the RCA electronic training series, titled Ultra High Frequency Fundamentals, has just been published and is now available, it was disclosed this week by the Government Service Division of the RCA Service Company.

A revision and expansion of an earlier booklet, Practical Analysis of Ultra High Frequencies, the new manual has been prepared as a technical aid for UHF training and the installation, operation, and maintenance of UHF electronic equipment.

The new manual will prove especially useful to military personnel and to manufacturers holding contracts to provide UHF equipment for the military, the company stated. The price is 75 cents per copy. Orders may be placed with the Government Service Division, RCA Service Company, Gloucester, N. J.

Technical writing facilities of the RCA Service Company's Government Service Division are being made available to electronic equipment contractors and military agencies under a program known as "Operation Techmanual," launched this week by the company. Projects the division will undertake include the preparation of instruction books, technical manuals, training aids, and special reports and presentations.

Protect Public Records

Citing a fire in the Union Street County Building, Cumberland, Md., which destroyed official records including Army service records, Remington Rand, Inc., this week called attention to a new pamphlet they have issued entitled "A Public Record is a Public Trust."

The pamphlet, the firm states, contains pertinent tips on the unreliability of "fire-proof" buildings, uninsulated safes, etc. Copies may be obtained by requesting pamphlet SC 705, "A Public Record is a Public Trust," from Management Controls Division, Remington Rand, Inc., 315 Fourth Avenue, New York 10, N. Y.

Races Prove U. S. Jets

Emerging from the National Air Races at Detroit this past week-end is America's best answer in the controversy over the relative quality of the world's jet fighting planes, according to Admiral DeWitt C. Ramsey, USN (Ret.), president of the Aircraft Industries' Association.

Not only did an Air Force fighter streak over a 100-kilometer (62.137 miles) closed course at a new world record speed of 628.698 m.p.h., but other jet fighters and bombers demonstrated superior range and maneuverability throughout the course of the show.

Carrying full combat loads, including complements of guns and rockets, the U. S. military jets showed over-all capabilities in excess of any operational aircraft in the world, including the best known Soviet warplanes, Admiral Ramsey said. Among high points of the Allison, Bendix and Thompson races were non-stop flights of about 2,000 miles by standard Air Force jets. In addition to this display of long-range jet characteristics, mid-air refueling of combat-ready aircraft was demonstrated.

"Most significant in evaluating the results of the National Air Races," said Admiral Ramsey, "is the fact that all records were set in unmodified, fully-armed combat-type aircraft."

"For example, the new closed-course record is held by a standard production-order USAF plane—unlike the previous mark set in England in a stripped-down and specially-modified fighter. Planes exactly like the new world record holder, carrying the same armament, pilot protection and fuel tanks, are fighting today in Korea."

The AIA head pointed out that the record-shattering speeds of American jets are achieved without sacrifice of rugged structural strength, extensive armor for pilot protection and heavy firepower.

The new closed-course mark of 628-plus m.p.h., set on Sunday by Col. Fred J. Ascani, betters the previous English record of 605.230 m.p.h. flown by John Derry in 1948 in a de Havilland DH 108. In an earlier test run on Friday, Ascani flew the same oval course at 635.411 m.p.h., a record which also will be submitted to the Federation Aeronautique Internationale for certification. FAI is the world record governing body.

The United States also holds the official international record for maximum jet speed—established in 1948.

Small Business Contracts

Small business firms, employing fewer than 500 persons, received 47 of the 53 contracts for construction of Army and Air Force vessels awarded by the Navy Bureau of Ships during the fiscal year which ended 30 June 1951.

The contracts totaled $50,556,911. The Navy Bureau of Ships, which acts as single service procurement agent for Army and Air Force vessels, announced that 60 per cent of total funds went to small business firms. The remaining 40 per cent went to six larger firms. The 53 contracts covered construction of 586 vessels including barges, harbor tugs, control boats, lighters and rescue boats.

East Coast firms received 22 contracts totalling $10,936,766. West Coast firms received 10 contracts totalling $7,511,447. Gulf Coast builders were awarded 10 contracts totalling $20,950,606, and Great Lakes and Inland Waterways companies received 11 contracts totalling $11,158,092.

priority system, but will not be granted dependent housing until such time as they would have arrived in Japan under the priority system.

"Dependents who were permitted to return to the U. S. at Government expense are precluded from reentry into the Far East Command during the current tour of the sponsor.

"It also was stated that individual dependents will not receive notification of selection for travel until after 1 Oct. and will not be able to travel to Japan before 1 Nov. This is due to the time element necessary for all eligible personnel to submit applications, preparation of priority lists, processing of dependents in the U. S., scheduling of vessels and actual travel from ZI ports of embarkation to Japan. The rate at which eligible dependents can travel will depend upon available housing and shipping. This rate cannot be determined reliably at this time.

"Sponsors must be stationed in Japan to be eligible for dependents to join them. Sponsors stationed in Korea may apply for travel of dependents in connection with applications for rotation to Japan, in accordance with parallel procedures issued to Eighth Army. As previously announced, dependent travel to Guam, the Philippines and Okinawa was resumed in February 1951."

Dedicate Vandenberg Village

A Wherry housing project at Selfridge Air Force Base, Mich., was dedicated recently to the late Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, and christened "Vandenberg Village."

Air Force Chief of Staff General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, nephew of the Senator, unveiled a plaque bearing the inscription: "Vandenberg Village, in Honor of Arthur H. Vandenberg, Senator from Michigan, 1928-1951, August 13, 1951."

Also present for the ceremony were Maj. Gen. Frederic H. Smith, Jr., Commanding General of the Eastern Air Defense Force, and Brig. Gen. Sory Smith, Director of Public Relations, USAF. They were welcomed by Col. James R. Gunn, Jr., Selfridge commander.

Following the unveiling ceremony, General Vandenberg was presented with a key to the door of the first completed unit by nine year old Arlen Bradley, son of Tech Sgt. Allen Bradley, whose family was the first to occupy one of the unit's apartments.

Later, the group attended the world premiere of "The Mount Clemens Story," a public relations motion picture depicting the ideal community military relationship existing between Mount Clemens and Selfridge AFB.

Part-Time Jobs

Military personnel, if they so desire, may now obtain part-time outside employment in certain activities essential to the national welfare, the Department of Defense announced this week.

Local commanders are authorized to permit military personnel to engage voluntarily in certain part-time agricultural and industrial work while on pass, leave, or while off duty. However, authorization is dependent upon certification by the appropriate Public Employment Service Office of the existence of a local labor shortage emergency and that such employment will not interfere with the customary employment and regular engagement of civilians in the same work.

A policy directive outlining the conditions under which such employment may be authorized stresses that passes or leaves will not be granted solely for that purpose. It emphasizes that the performance of the work will not involve expense to a military department and that permission will not be granted if such work impairs the efficiency of personnel in the performance of their military duties.

Income Tax Relief

Senator Herbert L. Lehman (D-N. Y.) told THE JOURNAL this week that he will continue his fight for special income tax exemptions for members of the Armed Services.

If the Senate Finance Committee, as now appears likely, does not include military exemptions in the revenue bill it will soon report out, Senator Lehman said, he will move to have it amended on the floor.

Associated with Senator Lehman in the proposed amendment are Senators Hendrickson (R-N. J.), Humphrey (D-Minn.), Kilgore (D-W. Va.), and Magnuson (D-Wash.). The bill, of which they are all co-sponsors, provides a $600 a year special exemption for service personnel plus $100 a year additional for each dependent other than the spouse.

Senate Majority Leader Ernest W. McFarland (D-Ariz.), also has a bill to restore the $1,500 a year military exemption in effect during the war. He told THE JOURNAL that he is not prepared to say what action he will take when the measure is reported out. He wants, he said, to wait and see what happens.

Combat Pay Petition

The Military Order of the Purple Heart has adopted a resolution endorsing the petition to take the Combat Pay bill from the House Committee on Armed Services and bring it to a vote on the floor of the House. The petition, now on the Speaker's desk, was submitted by Representatives Teague (D-Tex.), and Potter (R-Mich.).

Meanwhile, the House has recessed and Chairman Vinson and most of the members of the Committee have gone home without any indication as to if or when they propose to consider the Combat Pay bill. The bill has been before Congress since early in January.

Pay Revision

Representative Paul J. Kilday (D-Tex.) told THE JOURNAL this week that he still expects to get his bill for the revision of the Career Compensation Bill completed in time to introduce at this session of Congress. The bill has been in preparation since last Fall.

Mr. Kilday has previously stated that the bill is not intended to be a general pay increase, but merely to straighten out inequalities that have shown up since the bill was enacted and to correct some misinterpretations.

Defense Housing Act

The Congress this week completed final action on the Defense Housing Act, provisions of which will permit the construction of low-income housing in areas near military installations which are currently in critical need.

Approved by a House-Senate conference committee early this week, the bill is almost certain to get the approval of the President.

THE JOURNAL learned that the Defense Department is already considering procedures for operating under the new law when it is signed. "Sufficient machinery is already in existence," the Department said "for the certification of certain critical areas." It was pointed out that prior legislation has made possible the implementation of any new programs.

The Defense Department hopes "in the not too distant future," a spokesman said, that a list of critical areas where military housing is needed can be drawn up for transmission to the President.

Fifty-thousand public housing units can be started by the Government during fiscal 1952 under the terms of the new legislation.

Nat. Guard Generals

The following officers were nominated this week for appointment in the National Guard of the United States of the Army of the United States:

Major General of the Line
Maj. Gen. Joseph Carson Hutchison, Fla. NG.
Brigadier General, Adjutant General's Corps
Brig. Gen. Gerard William Kelley, N. Y. NG.
Brig. Gen. Fred William Makinney, Hawaii NG.
Brig. Gen. Joe Nickell, Kans. NG.
